VANCOUVER — John Marshall, director of air traffic controllers in British Columbia, says controllers in the province are so upset with contempt of court proceedings against them they might walk off their jobs again.

Warrants in the contempt cases are expected to be served shortly against about 155 controllers across the country — including 15 in B.C. — who walked off their jobs just before a commercial pilots strike last month.

Marshall said that although he continues to advise against any walk-out, he is not sure he can prevent association members from taking such an action.

In Gander, Nfld., the vice-president of the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers' Association also said Wednesday the contempt proceedings will agitate association membership.

Mike Tonner of Gander said the action is unfortunate sinee the membership was just beginning to have faith in the federal government's ability to deal with bilingual air traffic control.

Tonner also said it is inconceivable that no controllers from Quebec are being charged.

13 Held In Envoy Slaying

Times News Services

DUBLIN — Police have rounded up 13 Irish Republican Army members in the biggest manhunt in the Irish republic's history, mounted for the land-mine killers of British ambassador Christopher Ewart-Biggs.

Police declined to identify the arrested men or to say what charges they may face.

At Londonderry in Northern Ireland, the British army arrested Rory O'Brady, president of Sinn Fein, the IRA's political wing, and Sean Keenan, a battalion commander of the IRA Provisionals.

Police said the army had handed the pair over to Eire officials and the men were being questioned.

Police arrested David O'Connell, 39, reputedly a past commander of the IRA Provisional wing, and Joe O'Neill, a political organizer, in Dublin a few hours after the ambush.

Police, meanwhile, think Ewart-Biggs was not the man the terrorists wanted to kill.

They suspect the man marked for death was Brian Cubbon, permanent under-secretary of state in Northern Ireland and the top British civil servant there, who was riding in the ambassador's car at the time.

Cubbon, on a visit to the Irish republic from his post in Belfast, was seriously wounded in the explosion.

WILD SHEEP FOOD JUNKIES

BANFF (CP) — Mountain sheep near this resort community are becoming dangerously undernourished because they are relying on junk food handouts from tourists, according to a member of the game warden service in Banff National Park.

He said the animals are begging for handouts around the tea house on top of nearby Sulphur Mountain and are literally starving to death on a diet of human snacks provided by well-meaning tourists looking for a picture.

"One person was giving them licorice and they're also eating those little plastic bags with the salt in them for peanuts," the warden said.

As a result, the herd has been neglecting its normal grass diet and animals are losing weight.

Wardens fear females are not producing enough high quality milk and lambs may die more easily during the coming winter.

Wardens cannot prohibit the handouts because regulations only prohibit feeding bears.

SUPER SLINGSHOT banned in North Vancouver is being sold at some Victoria stores.

POCKET ROCKETS NOT BANNED HERE

New-style slingshots which can hurl a stone 225 yards and are already banned in one Lower Mainland area, are on sale in Victoria.

North Vancouver District council banned sale and possession of the slingshots, known as Pocket Rockets, last Monday.

The bylaw was sparked by complaints that stores there were selling steel slingshots with an armbase and surgical rubber slings attached to a tubular steel frame.

The ban was imposed to prevent damage before it occurred.

In Victoria, the slingshots are sold at Woolco, Robinson's Sporting Goods and Gordon's Sporting Goods, a random survey showed. Prices range from $6.97 to $8.95.

K-Mart also reported sales of the pocket rockets but was out of stock today.

Eaton's, The Bay, Woodward's and Simpson-Sears sporting goods departments said they don't sell the slingshot.

Marchand Sued For Libel

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa crown prosecutor Andres Berzins said Wednesday he will sue Jean Marchand for libel because the former cabinet minister refuses to retract a statement accusing him of cheating.

"We are going to settle this thing in court," Berzins said in an interview, referring to allegations by Marchand about the circumstances which occurred after he lost his driver's licence last year.

"I will definitely sue," Berzins said.

His comment came moments after Marchand's lawyer released a letter about the allegations.

Marchand backed up his statement in an interview from Quebec City.

Last fall, Marchand was charged, and later convicted, of leaving the scene of an accident. He had been involved in an Ottawa traffic accident earlier in the year, and witnesses testified that he left the scene without getting out of his car.

In a June newspaper interview, he claimed there had been an agreement between himself and the Crown regarding the case and that he had been cheated.

Berzins had said Marchand apparently felt he would receive only a small fine if he pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident.

But the assistant Crown attorney for the judicial district of Ottawa-Carleton said he "never breached any deal that was made."

RESIDENTS FIGHT DEVELOPMENT

Millions in Profits 'At Stroke of Pen'

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Land developers and speculators stand to make millions of dollars profit if a proposed industrial park is allowed in the Vanalman-Glanford area of Saanich.

In fact, the profits could run as high as $42 million, claims Lawrence Cook, chairman of a group of concerned residents from the Royal Oak and Northridge areas.

"It would be the biggest bonanza ever to hit Greater Victoria," Cook said in an interview Wednesday.

"Instant millionaires would be made overnight. And not one cent of the profit would go back to the municipality to help lower taxes or give residents in the area benefits or concessions."

Cook said the citizen's group is "totally opposed" to the proposal which would involve lifting much of the 125-acre site out of the agriculture land freeze and rezoning it for commercial and industrial use.

The proposal was announced by council after nearly four years of study for a suitable location for an industrial park.

Cook maintains Mayor Ed Lum is aware of the huge profits that would be made and blasted Lum for his apparent determination to push the scheme through council.

Dick Gauthier, a member of the executive of the Royal Oak community group, also lashed out at Lum.

"He seems to want to go through with this plan no matter what."

Gauthier said initially most residents were resigned to some industrial development in the area.

But not any longer.

"The consensus I get is there is no way the people want any part of the complex now."

The reason for the change in heart, he said, has been Lum's bungling and vagueness in answering questions or providing guarantees regarding the ultimate size of the complex, the size and type of buffer zones, and the amount of additional tax revenue it would generate.

He said to his knowledge, no study has been done on the impact on the health and welfare of people in the surrounding area or on property values outside the designated industrial site.

Yet, he contends, such a study was required under the Municpal Act.

He's upset for personal reasons, too.

"I moved into Northgate 4½ years ago to get into a rural setting," he said. "Now I'm confronted with an industrial complex being built right at my backdoor."

Cook said based on past and current sales prices of land in the proposed site, owners will reap an enormous windfall gain by a zoning change.

Pregnancy Firing 'Bias'

A human rights board of inquiry has ruled that any employer who fires a woman because she is pregnant is acting in contravention of the Human Rights Code.

Human Rights director Kathleen Ruff said the ruling is important for all the women in B.C. because prior to the ruling there was no protection for women, "and it happened quite often" that they were fired for that reason.

The inquiry, chaired by Sholto Hebenton, was held into a complaint by a Vancouver woman last October who said she was fired from her job as a reservations clerk because she was pregnant.

The employer, Riviera Reservations Ltd., argued however that the woman was let go because she was incompetent at her duties.

The human rights department alleged the woman was discriminated against because of sex, "only women get pregnant," said Ruff — and without cause.

CITY DRUG RAID SCOOPS UP HASH

An organization allegedly bringing drugs from eastern Canada to Vancouver Island was hit Wednesday by a series of police raids in Victoria, a spokesman for the Co-Ordinated Law Enforcement Unit said today.

The raids were carried out by CLEU members and officers of the Victoria drug squad.

About 440 grams of hashish worth $4,400 on the street and a small amount of marijuana was seized, the spokesman said.

Four persons were taken into custody and appeared before Judge Fred Green in Victoria provincial court this morning. They are Patrick Joseph McLoughlin, 28, and Joanne Gareau, 19, both of 1083 Redfern, James Brad Belefontaine, 22, of 425 Wilson and Harold Arthur Reid, 26, address not known.

McLoughlin and Gareau are charged with possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking. No pleas were entered and both were remanded to July 28 for legal counsel.

Judge Green set bail for Gareau at $1,200 with one or two sureties and held McLoughlin in custody.

Reid is charged with possession of marijuana for the purposes of trafficking and was remanded to July 29 for election of trial method and plea. He was released on a $1,000 recongizance bond.

Belefontaine pleaded guilty to possession of three grains of hashish and was fined $150.

Aurora Buy 'Bad Deal'

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Concern that the Canadian government has made a "bad deal" in deciding to purchase the Lockheed CP-140 Aurora was voiced Wednesday by New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent and Alan McKinnon, Progressive Conservative defence critic.

"If Lockheed fails at the most inappropriate time we will have paid dearly for what we will have on hand—some plane wings and some irrelevant and obsolete production machinery," said McKinnon the PC member for Victoria.

Broadbent conceded that there was no doubt the CP-140 aircraft was airworthy and could be used to detect submarines.

"What we do question is whether we need an improved submarine detection capability. Military experts tell us that the chances that Canada would be called upon to keep the sea lanes open to Europe are very remote.

"James Richardson seems to have a 'Walter Mittyish' fantasy about finding submarines."

McKinnon said a "serious flaw" in the newly announced agreement to purchase was that Canada would still be paying out several hundred million dollars before the first aircraft is completed. This was the basic reason that the first deal frightened off the Canadian banks.

"If we compare the two contracts as to price, the previous contract — with interest payments of $108 million — came to $1.06 billion or $953 million without the interest. The new contract comes to $1.03 billion — without interest — for a lesser plane.

"Either we are paying a great deal more for the plane or Lockheed has simply added the interest charges to the basic price," said McKinnon.

Defence Minister James Richardson said in Ottawa Wednesday that the billion dollar deal could bring Canada as much as $932.6 million in industrial benefits.

He said Lockheed has undertaken firm contractual commitments to place some $414.6 million worth of "program-related and offset work" with Canadian manfacturers and suppliers.

In addition, the company is committed to transferring to Canadian plants the production of future P3 aircraft components amounting to approximately $168 million.

Richardson said this work would go to Canadair in Montreal.

Martian Morning Nippy

Times News Services

PASADENA — The first Martian weather report shows nippy morning temperatures of -82 degrees Celsius on the Red Planet, under pink skies.

Dust particles floating in the thin atmosphere scatter sunlight to paint the sky pink, scientists explained today, even though it looked an earthly blue in Viking 1's first color picture.

"It it red, but not as red as the surface," said Dr. Carl Sagan.

The false color in the first picture was due to the fact that Viking's cameras have not yet been adjusted to reproduce colors on Mars with perfect accuracy, said project officials.

A more serious problem was also revealed late Wednesday. The seismometer designed to detect marsquakes did not turn on properly after Tuesday's landing.

Unless it can be fixed by radio commands from earth, the instrument will not be able to carry out its work of recording quakes and examining the interior of the planet, said Lou Kingsland, deputy mission director.

Sudanese Join Games Exodus

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Sudan today joined the list of African countries boycotting the Olympic Games, but the Sudanese had an extra reason for quitting — nearly half their athletes were disqualified from competing on a technicality.

Fouad Hassan, head of the Sudanese delegation, said today he had given official notice of the pullout to the Olympic organizing committee Wednesday.

Sudan's 28 athletes would leave the Olympic Village today, he added.

"We are withdrawing for two reasons," Hassan said. "First, we didn't get our players registered. Second, because of New Zealand's participation."

The withdrawal of Sudan brings to 30 the total number of nations which have pulled out of the Games to protest a New Zealand rugby team's tour of South Africa.

Hassan, however, sounded more frustrated over the disqualification of seven boxers and six shooters because their registration forms were submitted after the July 16 deadline.

The forms arrived by mail

MONTREAL (Reuters) — Japanese gymnast Shun Fujimoto wore a plastic cast from hip to toe Wednesday after he defied a broken leg to compete and win the coveted gold medal for his team Tuesday night.

The crew-cut competitor from Tokyo beat searing pain in his right leg to score 9.75 points on the rings — his best personal score and good enough to beat the Soviet team into second place.

But doctors said today the Fugimoto's knee bone was already broken when he executed a triple somersault and twist to come off the rings and stand still long enough to fetch the winning score. Then he was carried away.

"I knew I was finished after the floor exercises when something cracked in my leg," he said in an interview.

"But the rings are my best appartus and I knew I needed to score at east 9.70 points to enable us to win the gold medal."

Almost shyly he added: "I just forgot about the pain and competed. Yes, when I came off the rings pain shot through me like a knife. It brought tears to my eyes but I managed to stand still and move my weight to my left foot. It was the best score on the rings in my life."

Fujimoto, who is married and has a small son, refused to be carried and hobbled to the podium to receive his gold medal with the rest of the team.

Now he is on crutches.

His feat has fascinated doctors and athletes at the Village.

Dr. Jean-Paul Dedeard, who examined Fujimoto, said: "He must have suffered incredible pain with that injury. How he managed to do somersaults and twists and land without collapsing in screams is beyond my comprehension. What a man."

GAMES HOME TO IMPOSTOR?

MONTREAL (CP) — Police sealed off part of the Canadian team's quarters at the Olympic Village today following reports that an impostor, claiming to be an alternate on the men's track relay team, was living there.

Canadian delegation officials had maintained that no athlete by the name of Paul Wilkinson of Oregon was registered with their office or assigned quarters with the Canadian track team. Reports indicated that Wilkinson had been living in the Village for two weeks.

A member of the Canadian track team, who insisted on remaining anonymous, said that Wilkinson is a friend of one of the team members and had been staying with the track team for almost two weeks.

"He's a friend of one of the athletes and has been staying here on a day-to-day basis doing his regular con job with the guards . . ." the track team member said. "No one has found out. He hasn't done anything destructive, he hasn't created any malice. He's quite welcome by all the athletes."

The team member said he did not know the specifics of Wilkinson's flim-flam but presumed he worked it by exchanging identification cards with his friends and moving about on a certain time schedule.

Net Closing on Bus-Nappers?

Times News Services

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. — A police task force today combed a 100-acre estate in the wealthy San Mateo County suburbs south of San Francisco in pursuit of thrill-seeking armed kidnappers who last week hijacked a bus load of 26 children.

The search was launched in the wake of reports the suspects were the sons of prominent families in the area.

Law enforcement sources said the young men may have joined in a "cult-type" group, and that the motive for the kidnapping, not yet established, might have been "thrills."

One source described the suspects as "a collective of kids from well-to-do families." He indicated both drugs and guns might be involved.

The estate is owned by Frederick Woods, who also owns the rock quarry in Livermore where the children and their bus driver were buried in a makeshift, underground prison for 18 hours before digging their way out.

Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins said officials wanted to talk to Woods' son, Frederick Woods, 24 and two of Woods' friends—Richard Schoenfed, 22, and James Schoenfeld, 24, sons of J. B. Schoenfeld, a podiatrist in nearby Atherton.

The investigation shifted here after clothing and other articles taken from the bus driver by the kidnappers were found alongside a Saratoga area road, about 20 miles south of Redwood City.

Investigators also learned that the buried moving van used as a prison was purchased from the Palo Alto Transfer and Storage Co. and that two vans used in the abduction were registered with the state department of motor vehicles office in Los Gatos.

All three areas are on the peninsula, ranging from 35 to 55 miles south of San Francisco.

Ross Resignation Demands Swelling

A second demand has been made for the resignation of Greater Victoria school board chairman William Ross.

This one came Wednesday from Mrs. Leah Brown who said there are examples of Ross abusing his power and acting in concert with administrative staff against the public interest as a trustee.

Ross was called on to resign June 21 by former Campbell River high school principal John Young over the way the board and district staff handled the lengthy procedures in the dismissal of a 15-year-old Shoreline Junior secondary pupil.

Mrs. Brown said Ross' answer to a letter sent to all trustees by a parent concerned over the placement of artifacts from the now-closed Lampson Street school is only one example of his abuse of power as chairman.

She also said a key administrative person may have manipulated Ross into believing he has more power than he actually has.

"The chairman has no more power than any other trustee other than conducting meetings," Mrs. Brown said.

At Monday's board meeting, Mrs. Brown presented a brief that was the result of 2½ months of study in which she outlined how administrative staff manipulates trustees.

Following the meeting there was some confusion over distribution of the brief.

Mrs. Brown said she still is not convinced the incident was accidental.

She said Ross' general attitude and the fact he oversteps his powers brings her to the conclusion he should resign.

At Monday's meeting Ross challenged her to become a trustee and face the daily problems of that position, but Mrs. Brown said she could do more from the outside.

Millions in Profits 'At Stroke of Pen'

He said land in the site sold in recent years for $2 to $3.25 a square foot, the going rate for prime agricultural land in Saanich.

But industrial property in Saanich and Esquimalt is currently selling for between $9.50 to $11 a square foot.

Cook said the industrial park site is probably the best industrial property in lower Vancouver Island and would assuredly fetch top dollar.

The profit through rezoning, he said, would run from $285,000 to $400,000 an acre depending on the original purchase price.

The calculation takes into consideration the $1.25 per square foot charge to service the area with sewers and water.

Cook estimated the total profit on the sale of the entire 125 acres could reach $42 million.

"All it would take is a stroke of a pen by the mayor and council," he added.

Cook said there are rumors developers and speculators have been busy buying up the property over the past couple of years.

However, a Times check shows as of Dec. 31, 1975, seven companies were the assessed owners of eight properties accounting for nearly 40 per cent of the property.

Dates of purchase and purchase prices are not known.

The companies, all local, include: K.B.D. Holdings Ltd. and Reliable Transfer of Victoria (21.4 acres); K.B.D. Holdings and Playland Enterprises (5.2 acres); Playland Enterprises (5.2 acres); Huwa Holdings Ltd. (5.5 acres), Caledon Builders Supply Ltd. (about three acres); Eric and Russell Johnson Ltd. (2.2 acres); and Dundurn Developments Ltd. (about five acres).

K.B.D. Holdings is a Victoria company listing Adrianus Kool of 440 Simcoe, president, and Alice Blackburn, 3228 Wicklow, secretary.

In addition to the company-owned properties there are several large lots owned by individuals as well as one owned by a religious group—the Church of the Nazarene, and another by a society—the Vancouver Island Netherlands Association.

As of Dec. 31, the major individual land holders were Sydney Tomlin and Stanley Tront of 4550 Cordova Bay (5.2 acres), Gordon and Doreen Ashton of 540 Warren (5.5 acres), Joan Hudson of 701 Vanalmann (2.5 acres), Norman Mayhew and Ronald MacDonald (about 2.5 acres).

Altogether there are more than 40 separately owned properties in the site, as of Dec. 31.

The Royal Oak-Northridge group, which was formed a month ago, will continue to press hard to have council abandon the rezoning proposal, Cook said.

The next meeting of the group is planned for July 29.

S. Africa Expelled From Track Group

MONTREAL (CP) — South Africa was expelled today from the world governing body of track and field for practising racial discrimination in sport.

By a vote of 227-to-145, the congress of the International Amateur Athletic Federation voted to support a resolution sponsored by the Soviet Union, Senegal and Sudan to expel the South African Amateur Athletic Union.

Before the secret ballot, delegates from Africa, Asia, Latin America and Eastern Europe spoke in favor of the resoltuion and said expulsion was the only way to force more racial integration in South African track and field competitions.

For the past six years, South African teams have been excluded from international track meets, but its athletes have been permitted to compete as individuals.

South Africa remains a member of about 10 of 21 international Olympic sports federations.

PERSONAL LOOK VOW ON PAISH LICENCE

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy said today she will personally review any guiding licence application made by Howard Paish.

"Any review . . . will come under my personal scrutiny because of its importance," McCarthy said.

The minister said she would not comment on whether the licence will be granted until Paish officially files his application.

Dr. Jim Hatter, director of the Fish and Wildlife branch, said earlier Paisch's licence will be renewed if he applies for it. McCarthy soid today she did not initiate Hatter's comments and refused to comment on them.

But she stressed that the application will come under her personal review.

Earlier, deputy recreation and conservation minister Lloyd Brooks said no official decision has been made because no application for a licence by Paish has yet been received.

He indicated no licence would be issued until McCarthy had reviewed the situation and he declined to comment on Hatter's memo to the Smithers office to issue a licence should Paish apply.

Paish, who operates a big game guiding operation in the Spatsizi Plateau Wilderness Park, was convicted on several counts contravening the Wildlife Act and faces court appearances in November on further charges under the act.

Black Youths Tear-Gassed

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Police used tear gas today to disperse a crowd of young blacks at a shopping centre in a black township at Vanderbijlpark.

A spokesman later described the incident at Boipatong township, 40 miles south of here, as minor. No injuries were reported.

Schools reopened in black townships around Johannesburg and Pretoria today, but few black pupils showed up.

At the junior high school outside Johannesburg where last month's boycott began, leading to riots in which 176 persons were killed, no black pupils were at their desks.

Armed police patrols in the segregated areas were reinforced to escort those pupils who did go to school.

School principals said the absenteeism might be due to short notice for the reopening of the schools, just announced Wednesday, and not a formal boycott.

Woman Wins Drive Right

VANCOUVER (CP) — Black Top Cabs has lifted its 20-year ban on women driving after 9 p.m. following a complaint to the British Columbia Human Rights branch from driver Terry Bellamy.

Company manager Harry Devernet agreed Wednesday to drop the rule after a branch investigator visited the cab company and said the ban violated the human rights code.

Devernet said the rule was established 20 years ago when women drivers kept getting into trouble and often had to be rescued.

"All we were trying to do was prevent our women drivers from coming to any harm," he said. "If it was bad 20 years ago, can you imagine the situation today?"

Mrs. Bellamy, 45, who says she needs to drive night shift because she is sole support of her three children, dismissed the dangers as an exaggeration.

She is the owner-driver of cab BT-90 on which she still owes the bank $3,600.

RCMP Morale 'High'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Senior RCMP officials said Wednesday that police morale is high, despite claims by recently retired Staff Sergeant Fred Bodnaruck that many police are disillusioned with the justice system.

Bodnaruck, a 25-year veteran from the North Vancouver detachment, resigned Tuesday, 10 years before retirement date because, he said, leniency in the justice system has made protection of the public impossible.

Chief superintendent Marvin Marcus, second-highest RCMP officer in British Columbia, said Wednesday that most police still believe the justice system is working.

"If it were any other way we would have a lot more resignations than we have had," he said. "I think morale is very high. I don't think this will change becuase one officer resigns."

Chief superintendent W. G. Lambert, head of the RCMP's Lower Mainalnd district, agreed disillusionment in the force is not widespread, and said he is more optimistic about the justice system than Bodnaruck.

"We have to recognize times have changef," he said. "We have advanced a long way since people were hanged for stealing."

Wallace Hopeful Of Pill Clamps

The vast amount of pill-popping by B.C. residents hopefully will be reduced by recent changes to the B.C. Pharmacy Act, Tory leader Dr. Scott Wallace said Wednesday.

The amendments, effective Aug. 1, require certain non-prescription drugs be dispensed only by a registered pharmacist.

They include pain killers and cough medicines which contain codeine; some iron supplement tablets and liquids, like Geritol which, in large bottles, contain a toxic amount of iron; aerosol bronchial relief products; and anti-infection products for eye, nose and ear infections.

Wallace

The regulations also stipulate that Vitamin K, used for the management of blood disorders associated with bleeding tendencies, can be sold only in drug stores, not in health food stores.

Wallace said physicians must share the blame for the "unprecedented increase in pill-taking" by Canadians.

Wallace, after meeting in Vancouver Tuesday with the registrar and deputy registrar of the College of Pharmacists, said druggists showed a "sense of social conscience" by working with the government to modify the over-all use of drugs and to help patients become better informed.

Health store proprietors in B.C. have complained that the new regulations allow pharmacies to have a monopoly on the sale of certain vitamins. But Wallace said these people are 'ill-informed and need not have such fears since the thrust of the new regulations is clearly designed to bring about the safer use of all medication in the province, whether available across the counter or by prescription only."

VOODOO HUNT OFF

The armed forces has called off the search for a Voodoo fighter jet which crashed recently in Georgia Strait.

Captain Wally Muzycha said searchers have not been able to find any trace of the jet, which crashed in view of several hundred passengers on a B.C. government ferry.

Searchers used a Pisces underwater submersible in the search for the million-dollar aircraft and the body of its pilot.

The body of the navigator was recovered shortly after the crash, but the body of the pilot, identified as Leslie John Cox, remained missing.

Captain Muzychka said the search could be resumed if any clues turn up as to what happened when the plane crashed.

Second Shelling Of Peace Team

BEIRUT (UPI) — Christian gunners today opened fire for the second day on an Arab League peace-keeping force manning a buffer zone between east and west Beirut, wounding nine soldiers and further jeopardizing hopes for a partial cease-fire.

Also, renewed heavy fighting again prevented the Red Cross from evacuating wounded from a besieged Palestinian refugee camp and an embittered Red Cross spokesman said further attempts had been cancelled because "we are sick of playing games" with Lebanon's warring factions.

Nine Saudi Arabian soldiers from the 150-man Arab League peace-keeping unit that moved into the "Green Line" bisecting the Christian and Moslem sectors Wednesday were wounded in the barrage of fire unleashed by the Christians.

Soldiers on the scene said eight mortars crashed into the treacherous 800-yard stretch of no-man's land between the Barbir Hospital and the national museum in southern Beirut.

The wounded were taken to the Saudi Field Hospital at Beirut Airport where the rest of the 2,300-man peacekeeping contingent of Libyan, Syrian and Saudi Arabian troops have been stationed for the past month.

GREENPEACE RUNNING DRY

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Greenpeace ship James Bay has given up its pursuit of a Russian whaling fleet and is heading back to Hawaii because of a fuel shortage, Greenpeace president Bob Hunter said in a radio message Wednesday.

The Vancouver-based anti-whaling expedition encountered the fleet Monday and stayed with it for 40 hours, managing to stop one chaser boat from harpooning a pod of 12 whales and forcing the Russians to put a halt to their whaling activities, he said.

"Before we got to the point of no-return in our fuel supply we had to let them go," Hunter said. "We're only going to make it back to Hawaii with a thimbleful of fuel left in our tank.

"We're glad we found them the day we did. Another day longer and we wouldn't have been able to make it."

Learning from Beryl

When Beryl Plumptre was here two weeks ago, at the invitation of Consumer Services Minister Rafe Mair to discuss ways of stemming British Columbia's rising food prices, she told us, in effect, to forget about the days of cheap food.

Lie back and get used to paying ever-higher prices for food, she said. Why the new provincial government had to bring her all the way out from Ottawa to tell it that is hard to understand, but as to the substance of what she said, Plumptre is probably right. Nothing else is getting any cheaper these days, so why expect food to be a bargain?

One beneficial side-effect of rising prices may be the revival of domestic agriculture, although the signs this summer certainly don't point to it. For example, Fraser Valley vegetable growers put in less acreage in peas, beans and corn this year because the processors offered 10 per cent less than last year's prices. Eventually, they agreed to offer the same price but by then many had converted to potatoes or forage crops.

It may be the distortion of remembering the "good old days," but it seems to us that B.C. used to produce much more of its own food. Ashcroft once had a thriving tomato and potato industry with processing plants and all. The Saanich peninsula once grew a huge volume of berries and soft fruits; today's business is a pale shadow.

Today's farmers blame cheap imports and in a sense they are right. B.C.'s farms before now could never hope to compete with the huge operations of California. But with the steep increases in the price of oil and petroleum-derived chemicals and fertilizers, how much longer will it be cheaper to grow and then transport American and Mexican produce thousands of miles to B.C.?

Farmers here grow good quality fruit, and vegetables, but B.C. consumers perversely drive to bordertown supermarkets for illusory bargains when their savings are eaten up by customs duty and the cost of driving down there. B.C. scientists and food processors develop a new process of preserving food in foil-plastic pouches, but business is awful.

Just three per cent of the province's vast land mass is arable, yet the cabinet seriously entertains several appeals to exempt large parcels in the Fraser Valley from the agricultural land freeze.

B.C. probably can grow much of the food we need — it's not for lack of brains, resources or raw materials that we don't. If we starve to death sometime in the late 1980s, it will be nobody's fault but our own.

Mars—the Implications

There have been many other space probes to the far corners of our solar system but none seems to have captured scientific and general public interest as the Viking soft-landing on Mars this week. One of the reasons is that the U.S. probe was specifically designed to look for life on the planet, rather than merely photograph its features or test its atmospheric composition.

This spacecraft will take thousands of pictures, like its predecessors, but the focus of attention is upon some exotic chemistry experiments to be performed in a small box aboard the craft about a foot square. Samples of the martian soil will be analyzed by a gas chromotograph to determine its elements, and a "broth" of nutrients will be used to incubate some of the stuff to see if dormant bacteria or plant life can be awakened.

More optimistic scientists, such as "exobiologist" (one who studies life on planets other than earth) Carl Sagan has stirred up conjecture that there may be large animals bounding about upon the Martian plains. (His analogy is the frozen arctic on earth, an almost desert-like expanse of waste which harbors several species of mammal, including the large polar bear.)

However, it seems more likely that any life on the red planet will be of a simpler type. There appears to be very little oxygen or water on Mars — two elements absolutely essential for the substenance of life on earth—but these days nobody is categorically ruling out any possibilities.

The photos sent back by the Viking lander as it orbited Mars for the past weeks, and information gained by earlier satellite passes, show that Mars is a planet of surprises and unexpected features. There's a volcano three times as high as Everest, with a base that on earth would stretch from one end of Vancouver Island to the other. Dust storms five miles thick. Strange curving lines and canyons that suggest flood action.

All these revelations have been received by a public familiar with Mars as the target of intense speculation for the last century, since the Italian Schiaparelli saw "canali" or lines on the planet and the American astronomer Lowell built that into dried-up canals and watercourses and entire ruined civilizations. Mars has been a favorite of science fiction writers from Edgar Rice Burroughs to the more sophisticated Arthur C. Clarke.

But no one has so far considered the implications of finding life on Mars. As Viking project leader Dr. Harold Mazursky said this week, the discovery of even the most elementary one-celled microbe on the planet's surface will have a profound philosophical impact, aside from the upheaval it will cause in science.

It is not much of an exaggeration to suggest that it will be as unsettling and far-reaching as the theories of Galileo and Copernicus were, or Darwin's theory of evolution. The belief that the sun, not the earth, was the centre of the solar system and that the earth revolved in orbit around the sun, was not just an interesting observation confined to the small astronomical confraternity of the 16th century and 17th centuries. Nor was it quietly and rationally accepted by church and state.

Galileo was tried for his scientific beliefs by the Inquisition in Rome, was forced to recant and spent the last eight years under house arrest. Jesuits of the day said his theories were more dangerous than the work of Luther and Calvin put together. Copernicus' great book, based upon his life's work and published in the last year of his life, was later put on the Roman Catholic church's index of banned books.

In these secular and irreligious times it is difficult to imagine the immense power of the church over men and the force of religious thought in past centuries. The debates over Darwin's theories are closer to our era historically but hardly more understandable. Of course, today only religious fundamentalists who take the Bible as literal truth believe that the universe was created in six days, that the great flood spoken of by Noah swept the globe in precisely 4001 BC.

How eminently sensible it seems to us today that the earth is actually several billion years old, that life began not with Adam's creation out of the clay but in some prehistoric swamp as an unthinking simple single-celled being.

But imagine these hypotheses torn to bits by some amazing discovery on Mars and we can come close to visualizing what Darwin's ideas did to the Victorian era, what Copernican and Galilean thought wreaked upon European man of four centuries ago.

For if Viking finds signs of even the most rudimentary forms of life, living or extinct, it will have a shattering impact. Earth is not alone if there is life on Mars. If there, then certainly on other planets in the boundless universe. Somewhere, there must be others like us.

The idea so far has been confined to science fiction and the world of UFO nuts, but with the Mars probe it must be considered seriously. This is spaceship universe.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

Our Very Nature Changed?

Those great American newspapers, the New York Times and the Washington Post, say that the mismanagement of the Olympic Games is "uncharacteristc" of Canada. Yes, but what, a Canadian must ask, is characteristic nowadays?

The gross and almost comic distortion of the national economy; the largest trading deficit in the western world; the slow business recovery; the epidemic of strikes; the still disastrous rate of inflation; and the latest friction between the two cultural communities — these are among the notable characteristics of contemporary Canada, fortune's darling and its fool.

Our foreign friends never understood us very well (which is equally true in reverse) and are surprised by the incompetence of our government. They fail to see, however, that the government's stumbling confusion, in the Olympics and in much larger affairs, is a pretty accurate mirror of a confused people.

Something Went Wrong

To be sure, the government is partly the author as well as the symbol of our uncharacteristic troubles. But they long antedated this particular government which has needlessly magnified them while discrediting itself. In fairness it should be said that the troubles began, unnoticed, some two decades ago.

As we can see in retrospect, Canada behaved characteristically during the Second World War and for a short time afterward. It came through that experience with the ablest government in its history, with an economy doubled in size and wealth, with prospects apparently unequalled elsewhere and with the general envy of mankind.

Then something went wrong not just in various governments but in the mood, if not the character, of the nation. It had mastered all the challenges of war. It throve and prospered abundantly in war's aftermath. It could withstand anything, except prosperity.

This period of success and euphoria, reaching its climax with Pierre Trudeau's victorious election in 1968, is called the revolution of excessive expectations, to which he added his own special ingredient of glamor. Though he promised no specific reform, his magnetic personality and brilliance of mind seemed to offer everything we could want — a bulging package of goodies, or wild surmises, known as the just society and now looking more like pandora's box.

The misfortunes of the Trudeau government, or any government, are not in themselves very important. The important thing, as the American newspapers and some Canadians suddenly realize, is Canada's uncharacteristic behavior, the old thrift of a hard northern land forgotten, the old skillful management of the economy relaxed, the old folk virtues that made the nation in the first place downgraded as obsolete, almost irrelevant, in the brave new age.

Anyone who mentions these facts is likely to be denounced as a capitalist or even a socialist and in any case an unpatriotic Canadian. The key fact is clear all the same. It is that our problem today can no longer be described as political in the ordinary meaning of the word and has become psychological or strictly human.

The character of the nation, not the ugly spectacle of its politics or the state of its economy is the real question before us. Any government, whatever its partisan label, will consciously or unconsciously reflect that character and any change in it. By the oldest law of history any people get, over time, the government they deserve. And if we could get a new government tomorrow morning its arrival would change nothing of importance unless the nation had also changed its current attitudes.

All these things should be kept in reasonable perspective, which is not easy at a time of change and confusion. While the economic indices are unsatisfactory, while Canada continues to price itself out of markets and jobs, while the government writhes in agony of survival and the opposition, so far, proposes no understandable alternative, Canada is still one of the most fortunate nations in the world.

The majority of Canadians, generally disregarding the unfortunate minority, never had it so good — so good, indeed, that they refuse to look at the facts of their actual situation. If they did, they would find that Canada is managing its unrivalled per capita resources with an incompetence totally uncharacteristic of its past and sure to damage its future gravely, and unnecessarily.

Worse to Come?

When our American neighbors, despite all their familiar problems and the brief gestures of their bicentennial year, are managing much better than we have done; when little nations like Sweden, Denmark and Switzerland have left us behind in their material living standards; when we could subdue half a continent but can't manage a festival of pure amateur sport without prodigal waste, graft and humiliation, surely it is time to reconsider not merely our government but our nature.

Has it permanently changed or are we in the grip of a temporary mood, a passing aberration? Foreign newspapers may raise but they have no right to answer that question. We alone must answer it for ourselves.

An optimist like this reporter will assume that the original character remains intact under the surface of events to reassert itself in due time. But perhaps not until we, like the British people, have endured worse trouble and admitted at last that the mess is of our own making, that we alone can cure it.

So Much Bigotry

Two articles in the July 15 Times impel me to write: Lisa Hobbs' piece clarifying the air traffic control issue, and Richard Gwynn's eloquent plea to reject the insidious trend towards acceptance of the separation of Quebec. In the face of so much bigotry against the French language in this province and in English Canada generally, it is heartening to hear the voice of tolerance being raised. I believe that few Canadians really want this country to break up, but the small-minded racism growing so alarmingly in recent years is certainly leading us in that direction.

What are we so afraid of? All that the French-Canadians want is to feel themselves a part of Canada, to have their rights of language respected, and, hopefully, to find a few people outside the borders of their own province who can speak it; so as not to feel like foreigners in their own land. To hear the venomous denunciations by the anti-Quebec faction, you would think Trudeau's bilingualism program, the only sane and sensible answer to the disunity in this country, was a sinister conspiracy to destroy English-Canadian culture.

An intensive program of bilingualism in the schools and through Quebec student exchanges could transform this country into a bilingual nation within a generation. Children learn French easily. It would then become a natural part of the culture of the whole nation, and separatism as a cause in Quebec would wither.

I write as a unilingual (to my regret) English-Canadian, native to British Columbia. Not a Liberal, either, I might add.—A. M. Phillips, Lansdowne Residence, University of Victoria.

Cougar like these killed girl at Gold River.

Murdering Animal

I could not help but note the occurrence of the slaying of a young girl in Gold River by a cougar.

Please make no mistake when I make the following comparison: I am not defending cougars or their right to roam their native habitat in search of prey. Nor do I condemn the encroachment of cilivization upon their territory.

Can we not penalize this animal the same as we now penalize one of our own kin for manslaughter or murder?

That is, to sentence him to confinement for a period of 10 years for the taking of a human life. Or should we use the same policy on a person as was used on this animal? That is, to destroy the aforementioned and perform an autopsy to determine why the said "animal" performed in such a manner?

With our new laws does this not give us food for moral thought?—Dan Pain, 2253 Sooke Road.

What of Cougar?

In commenting on the capital punishment abolition bill having been passed:

Did they try to rehabilitate or confine the cougar at Gold River?

Did they approach psychologists to make that cougar conform? They've got a simpler life than man, but are forced to live under capital punishment when we aren't! It doesn't seem right.—Lorne Peasland, 277 Sims Avenue.

Poor Cougar

I would like to add my voice to those of the abolitionists to protest the "cruel and unusual" death penalty for the poor, unfortunate cougar which attacked and killed seven-year-old Matilda Samuel near Gold River.

I am sure that our society could have better put this beautiful animal away in a gold-plated cage with all the comforts we could supply including the best in food, exercise equipment and facilities, even a colored television.

Then after several years of such treatment we could well afford to turn it loose again. We might even anticipate that he would repeat his aberration. — M. S. McLean, 80-2911 Sooke Lake Road.

Rent Action

Action Now by all concerned citizens of British Columbia could force the Bennett government to stop all further rent increases for our pensioners.

At the present rate the basic rent of 1974 will have increased by 50 per cent in 1977.

A letter to the premier demanding such action is most urgent.

Write that letter today. Pensioners are fighting inflation empty handed.—Otto Nordling, North Vancouver.

Defective Meters

Motorists, are you aware that it is illegal to park in a space with a defective meter? Visiting our daughter in the Victoria General Hospital last Friday, my husband parked in the only space available and found the meter jammed. The explanatory note left under the windshield wiper and our quarter were both there when we returned, and a $3 violation ticket had been added.

Complaining bitterly to the commissionaire and his superior officer, we were politely informed that commissionaires are not allowed to touch money left on cars or meters; it is not their policy to hang "out of order" signs or hoods on defective meters, and it is the responsibility of each driver to obtain a copy of traffic regulations from city hall and abide by them.

Theoretically defective meters should mean a loss of revenue, but I wonder how many violation tickets are issued daily at each defective meter before the work crews get around to repairing them? Perhaps city hall officials would consider selling repair kits to motorists, with instructions on how to fix defective meters so that they accept the coins we try to stuff into them. The ever encroaching yellow curbs reduce the number of parking spaces available within the city, so any action taken would be welcome if it alleviated the annoyance of jammed meters and spaces that cannot be used. — Ruby Pearson, 2085 Avondale Road.

Alcoholism

Encouraging words — Help for Alcoholics Planned. I was truly encouraged to read about the hope of having an alcohol counselling program in B.C. announced on page one of the Times July 16 by Health Minister Bob McClelland. It is evident this service is long overdue as was indicated in the story about Dr. J. George Strachan on page 27 of the same edition of the Times. I hope Mr. McClelland and his associates realize that help for a suffering alcoholic will ultimately result pn a healthier and happier environment for all those concerned with the alcoholic.

Thank you, Mr. McClelland, for the encouraging news. B.C. deserves to be as good as the rest of Canada in this field too. — I.I.B., Victoria.

Under Broiling Sun, Nothing Else Matters

By JILL TWEEDIE
Manchester Guardian

Last Sunday I lay by the Thames near Maidenhead, nailed to a small wooden jetty by the hammerhead of the sun. Slow worms of sweat slithered across my body. The river was flat and Limpopo green. Along its smoothness boats went up and down, ferrying cargoes of flayed bodies as if from some distant battlefield. It was dead on noon and dead silent. No leaf moved, no grass blade stirred. A butterfly flattened on a burning stone, a bee hung buzzless in a rose, an ant dropped its greenfly and nodded off. An invisible volcanic ash had stopped us all in our tracks, a perfectly preserved English Pompeii, a still life for tourists a thousand years hence.

Would Monday morning dawn on lengths of empty city streets, acres of vacant office desks and factory benches? Would the Red up in the sky forge an instant revolution undreamed of by Reds under the bed? Without a march or demonstration, a soap-box orator or a polemic pamphlet, a single coded message passed between one man and another. Would the workers of England, each off his own bat, lay down tools forever, refuse ever again to do what a man must do, refuse on this Monday to start again, earning a living?

Because, under a broiling sun, what living is needed? The itch to possess, the drive to make money, the duty to labor, fades and dies, lingering only as a faint memory of some illness once suffered and now gone, leaving the body drained and whole again. As the sweat trickles and the eyelids swell, as the skin mottles and turns brown, getting and spending seems an odd, outmoded activity, a fever that once upon a time consumed and then was burned out. Almost impossible to think what it was all for, the bustling, the shoving, the rushing around. Televisions and carpets, toasters, and washers, fur-trimmed coats and four walls? Who needs it, when even wood is hot and metal a danger to human flesh. The sun burns away all the dross of the consumer society, it turns things into ashes. What madman driven by what insane greed would endure wage slavery in order to accumulate more than the bare necessities?

The sun is an agent of subversion more powerful than any plot devised by man. Pulsing in a shining sky, it beats ambition, competition, acquisition to a powdery pulp. Its flaming rays pump out one overriding message — why bother? Why ever bother? What did, what does, what ever could matter enough to move one glistening limb. Let economic disaster hit, let the pound fall to the level of one aduki bean, let industry fold its tents and steal away, let the banks close and the petrol pumps dry and the machines run down and the bills mount, and still there is no motive even for turning over from belly to back. Fame and fortune, invention and progress are children's toys left out too long and now cracked, rusted useless, disdained by owners and scavengers alike, artifacts of a civilization past, treasure trove for future archeologists.

I lie half asleep, listing my needs. One torn and sun-bleached dress, one pair of sandals, a rug to smooth my sleep, a well for cool water, a river for fish and for washing, a patch of ground for beans and peas, tomatoes, and lettuce. Somewhere back there, in the city, four walls are packed with possessions now obsolete, unwanted. Outside, a car. A boiling, searing, four-door cage with seats to tear the skin off rumps and a wheel to char the hands, belching filth, groaning for fuel, capable only of restless movement because we are never where we want to be. Detested spin-off of an industrial revolution that has spewed non-biodegradable rubbish, across our pleasant land. Down the river bank there is a spear of blue, a kingfisher. No stunted, whey-faced children crawled in mines; no women stitched their fingers raw; no men coughed their lungs out to make a kingfisher.

The sun pummels out of human beings the questions hidden deep below the surface, under the compliant front. Why were people wrenched from the fields and packed into satanic mills, why were men and women prised apart, and set against each other, one to earn, the other to be dependent and produce dependents, cut off from the tribe in ticky-tacky boxes? Why are great whales slaughtered to extinction so that cats may eat and comfort us in our isolation? Why are forests ravaged to produce a million billion bad books? Is there progress or only change? Do some live who would have died? Yes, but many die so that the few may live too well, taking another route to death.

Heart attacks and cancer take over from rickets, one country spews gadgets on another's starvation; technology gives us more crops filched from another's birthright. Before we knew of vitamins, our food was full of them. Now we have discovered them, they are fast vanishing, pulped out of the cardboard convenience foods that cook quickly so that we may rush back to the factory and make more. Under the sun, the questions breed and multiply. From the prison of childhood we are released into the prison of adult life, where the rules are unwritten and relentless. Thou shalt get up in the morning, thou shalt go to work, thou shalt earn and spend and earn and spend and sleep and start again. Ask not for whom the cash register tolls, it tolls for thee.

How were wars ever fought, under a hot sun? The first day of the battle of the Somme is made more hideous, if that is possible, by the fearful knowledge that it was a lovely summer day, that the sun shone, that the larks sang, that the poppies shone like blood across the wheat, that roses bloomed in Picardy. What ghastly impetus made it impossible for a flash of sanity to halt all action on that beautiful morning and save a generation? Was there no one in command capable of reading the message written everywhere that day? Last year, I stood in Holland among neat white crosses that rayed out across the green grass as far as I could see, each one sprouted from a young man's body. Last summer it was hot, too. The butterflies fluttered in and out of the lines, the bees sucked pollen from the graveside flowers. I wanted to conjure those men alive, have them stand where their crosses were standing and give them another chance, another choice. As the sun began to burn on their dead-white flesh, could they possibly say they would do the same again.

Two years ago, in Samarkand, Eden of the East, the conqueror Tamerlane's imperial capital, the sun is sucked of its fury in the water-blue tiles of mosques. Deep below the scorched earth is the green rock jade of Tamerlane's tomb, lame father of a dynasty of despots. In his time, men trembled before him and touched their foreheads to the ground, but I sat on his jade coffin and thought no more, but that it was cool against my legs. In Samarkand, heat pounds and cracks on the dusty streets, reddening the eyes and blistering the skin, turning the sky into enemy territory so that human beings run from shade to shade like hunted men through hails of bullets. Heat like that demands submission in every facet of life — submission in building, in clothing, in mode of living. It is more omnipotent than Tamerlane ever was. It lays down the hours of work, it forces the planners to plan around it with cool courtyards and ancient tiles, canals that criss-cross every street, trees that shade every square.

But the fountains, girls in the rainbow silks of Uzbek costume wander here and there and rise their faces to the cooling spray. What do they think, these small, dark, ancient people, behind their half-Indian, half-Chinese masks? What do they think of the big blond blue-eyed Russians who swelter in their midst, paid danger money by Moscow for working under that sun? No stranger can know and yet it is clear that those sun-baked republics seem quietly to have conquered their conquerors. Out of Moscow they have drawn the bonus of literacy and sexual equality and an end to the endemic starvation and disease and, to this bonus they have added the luxuries of the sun that icy Moscow goes without, stalls overflowing with saffron and pomegranates, melons and grapes.

So we came back to the cooler climes and now find a hotting up. Grey stone villages turn, in the new glow, into Mediterranean haunts. Geraniums cascade over every window sill, once wind-blown squares fill with naked children and gossipping grown-ups, people walk barefooted on cobbed streets, doors and windows breach the Englishman's castle and the roads are filled with music and voices and smells. Where shall we go for our holidays when our own beaches burn? No longer, surely, to the lidos of Italy, the seas of Spain, or the south of France? We shall bask in Wales and Ramsgate and set off to vacation in the cool Norwegian fjords or the winter twilight of Lapland. Come to Coldest Canada, the posters will invite. Cavort in the Cool of Siberia. Go North, Young Man. Packages to both Poles. Self-catering Igloos by the Icy Arctic Sea. Holiday crowds swarming back through Heathrow will carry the new souvenirs; no straw hats but sealskin gloves and snowshoes, to hang in tropical English sitting-rooms for the rest of the tropical summer.

And we, the English, so long conditioned to flatten ourselves in the smallest ray of sun, will move indoors, jettisoning our sun-tan lotions and our panama hats, preserving jealously the whiteness of our skins, like old Greek ladies do. We will dress in black and grow pale outer circles around our irises, mark of eyes burnt out by sun. Our houses will shrink inside and swell outside to balconies and porches. The long evenings we will sit rocking on our stoops, leaving our televisions to glare on empty rooms.

Last Sunday, we were a hotter place than Tangier or Morocco, Istanbul or Athens, Florence or Madrid. We will sit on our vine-heavy verandahs and watch the Greeks and Italians, the Spaniards and the Arabs flocking to our beaches. Only mad dogs and foreigners, we will croon to each other as we retreat indoors for our siestas, go out in the midday sun.

There's More Erratic Weather Ahead

By JAMES P. STERBA

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — The weather seems to have gone berserk lately. The tennis courts at Wimbledon in England have not been as parched since the 1920s. The same is true for croplands in northern France, the Soviet Union, Minnesota and the Dakotas.

As a result, Iben Browning and other previously ignored climatologists are getting a lot of attention. Projections that they made years ago appear to be coming true.

They believe the earth's climate has moved out of an abnormally mild era into a cooling cycle, which means highly erratic weather for decades. With the world's population now so high, the results of even minor year-to-year shifts in climate could be catastrophic they say.

Unlike most scientists, who have become increasingly specialized, Browning, 58 years old, is a Renaissance man. He worked on development of the atom bomb. He is a facile inventor, with 65 licensed patents. He holds degrees in physics, mathematics and zoology, and he has worked as a weapons system analyst on many secret U.S. government projects.

Studying climate has been his "hobby" for 19 years, and he finds history — both geologic and human — as important as computer readouts for his theories.

Contending that the impact of changing weather trends is immense, he explains:

"During stable times, planners tend to inherit the earth. They can count on predictable weather and good crops year after year, allowing them to plan for welfare programs, wars or whatever. Unstable times are hard times. You see them throughout history. The rules change. People with food tend to keep it for themselves. The others become very hard to compromise with when their babies are starving. We have now entered one of those rough, tough periods."

Browning's basic theory is that changes in climate can be traced to physical causes, which include the gravitational pulls of orbiting planets like Jupiter as well as solar activity. Orbital mechanics affect tidal forces, which, in turn, affect stresses on the earth's thin crust. These set off earthquakes and volcanoes. Volcanoes spew huge amounts of dust and gases into the atmosphere blocking out sunlight.

Atmospheric garbage from volcanoes, the position of the earth in relation to the sun, and the sun's convulsive activity, all determine how much solar energy reaches the earth's surface, he says. And that, in turn, determines temperatures, humidity and weather patterns.

All these things occur in various cycles, he says, and the cycles fit uncannily with patterns of both geologic and human history.

For example, he goes on, there were high tides and low solar activity in the early 1780s. In 1783, two large volcanoes erupted in Iceland and Japan, filling the atmosphere with dust and gases. Benjamin Franklin, visiting France at the time, found it unusually cold. Franklin also noted that he could not see the sun until it was 17 degrees above a red horizon. The dust was blocking it out.

The next year it snowed around Mexico City causing crop failures and starvation according to Browning. Tree rings and wine-growing records document erratic weather in Europe over the next several years. It hailed one summer across France. Food there became scarce. In 1789 after somebody said "Let them eat cake" the French Revolution began.

History is filled with similar examples says Browning. Each time their lands in Central Asia dried up the Mongols marched south into China.

Quaker Oats, Pillsbury and dozens of other companies have had Browning into talk to executives. But one analyst with a large investment firm cautioned that climatologists discredited for so long "have their chance to be in the limelight and are playing it to the hilt."

One of the things they are often asked is what kind of climate is in store for the Soviet Union. Browning predicts bad news.

What happens he explains, is that during cooling periods — like the one going on now — the average line of good climate and favorable growing conditions in the northern hemisphere shift southward. The Soviet grain belt is already in the southern part of that country, so when the good climate shifts, it shifts out of the Soviet Union.

The U.S. is far better off, Browning believes. The average line of good climate runs across the centre of the country. If the northern states get cooler and drier—as he projects they will — there is still plenty of land in the south to raise bountiful crops, a line of reasoning that doesn't augur well for Canada.

Browning says that because the world cannot count on adequate food supplies, agriculture is once again becoming a major economic focus for the U.S. And productive people are flocking into the central states, leaving coastal cities in decline, in debt, and carrying public welfare burdens they can no longer afford.

He makes no mention of Canada — however, Regina development director J. S. Walker comments that "Saskatchewan, alongside Alberta, is the best economic base in Canada," which suggest there could be some parallels here.

THE ABNORMAL BECOMING NORMAL?

Dogs as People: Everybody Moves Over

By COLMAN McCARTHY

It isn't known how many citizens have stopped using their neighborhood parks because they have become dog runs. People driven away by the filth of the animals' excrement or their bites is not a statistic easily computed.

That is only one lack. The other is an expression by dog owners of their views, as the pets on which they spend an estimated $1.5 billion a year for health care alone all but take over the city parks and whole sections of public space.

We have heard from non-owners for years. Their views range from support of the Reykjavik, Iceland, plan — ban dogs from the city limits for reasons of public health — to urging timid town councils to raise the taxes on dog licences or stiffen the fines on owners who ignore scoop-it laws.

But dog owners, unlike their barking charges, have tended to be silent. A breakthrough may be coming. Voices are being heard, some of them with snarls appropriate to the Siberian husky. Recently in New York, two groups have been waging a verbal war over territorial rights to Abingdon Square Park in Greenwich Village.

The issue was the old one: should parents have the park as a recreation area for their children or the pet owners have it for a dog run? For once, the dog owners spoke out. A newspaper story quoted two: "We pay taxes like the parents do, and our dogs have just as much right in Abingdon as the children do." And: "A lot of us feel the same way about our dogs as they do about their children."

These thoughts ably articulate what should have been clear all along: dog owners believe that their dogs are not dogs, but people. Once that view is accepted as normal and rational, everything else falls into place. It is totally logical, for example, that supermarkets should sell dog food for as much as $1 per pound, while an aisle over ground beef for humans is 69 cents per pound. The labels on dog food carry more nutritional information than those for baby food. Many veterinarians charge as much for an office visit as the family doctor. In New York City, the Animal Medical Centre charges as much as $15 per day to keep a dog overnight; at the Bowery municipal centre for homeless alcoholics, the city allots $8 for a day's shelter.

The diseased alcoholics get no medical care, but the dogs at the medical centre have a cardiology department that fits pets with pacemakers and a cancer clinic that provides immunotherapy. A recent report in the New York Daily News said the high costs of health care for dogs many soon be covered by prepaid pet health care insurance.

It is common for dog owners to give their pets Judeo-Christian names: Daniel, Christopher, Ruth, Mary. It is a cold-hearted dog owner who doesn't take advantage of the dog beauty parlor, the dog day care centre, the dog resort (for owners who like separate vacations), the dog cemetery, the dog psychologist.

One of the latter is Michael Fox. He believes that dogs can become neurotic. In People magazine, he said that one form of neurosis "has the dog being terrified of another dog. That can come from being raised exclusively among people. The pet literally thinks of himself as a human being. Some dogs like that have problems breeding — they would sooner breed with their owners."

The humanization of dogs means that people will have to move over, even if they persist in thinking that parks are for people and children come before pets. The owner who has just paid a vet $500 to $1,000 or more for emergency surgery when his dog crushed its ribs under a car wheel will want to protect his investment by giving Daniel or Mary full run of the park, sidewalk or any other public area to defecate, bite or pursue all the happiness that is there to chase.

No owner who lays out immense sums is about to allow his dog to lead a dog's life. Any beast that is fed and housed better than tens of millions of human beings in the third and fourth world should lead a human life. The dog has been man's best friend for too long; man should now be its best friend, starting out with a declaration not of independence but equality.

What dog owners are asking of others is not that their dogs be loved but that their logic be accepted. If it makes total sense to humanize a dog — as the dog food companies, dog psychologists, dog morticians and dog beauticians know it does, because otherwise sensible people keeping coming back for more — why can't a little public space be given over without protest?

Samuel Butler believed that "the great pleasure of a dog is that you make a fool of yourself with him and not only will he not scold you, but he will make a fool of himself too." But what of the non-fools? The question they are asking at one Abingdon Square or another is, at what point does the abnormal become normal?

300 TOURISTS HIGH AND DRY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thirteen French tourists and a honeymooning couple were among 390 people left high and dry Wednesday after the Alaska cruise ship Renaissance failed to sail.

"I'm just trying to keep from crying," said Mrs. Emerson Hochwalt, of Dayton, Ohio, when she learned that the Pquet French Cruises' ship due to leave Vancouver had been taken to a Seattle drydock for repairs.

The ship hit a submerged object Sunday on its way from Alaska, damaging a fuel tank, Pquet representative Alyane Mariud said Wednesday. It had no difficulty completing the cruise but will be laid up for at least a week, she said.

Mrs. Maruid attempted to make other arrangements for 13 French tourists while Westours Inc., based in Seattle, looked after the rest of the would-be pasengers.

"Under the circumstances a refund just doesn't seem fair," Mrs. Hochwalt said. "There's quite a lot more involved than the money."

Westours spokesman Jim Fausey said that a refund is all his company is able to do for people, including two honeymooners who had only signed up for the cruise, although alternatives were being provided for tour groups.

He said most people were informed of the cancellation before they reached Vancouver and only a handful of people showed up at the CP Rail dock Wednesday to baord the ship.

"What else can you do but laugh," said Mrs. Robert Swensen, of Jackson, Calif.

"I was really shocked when it first happened," said Mrs. Arthur Jansen, of Ventura, Calif. "I guess we'll just have to go home."

Appeal Looks For $800,000

A force of 3,000 is being assembled for the biggest United Appeal campaign in Victoria history — a minimum of $800,000 for 25 charitable organizations.

The annual drive for contributions opens Sept. 10 with a special canvass of business, education and public service sectors. Target for the community-wide appeal is up 8.5 per cent, or about 3 per cent less than the inflationary rise last year.

Co-chairmen are husband and wife Bob and Elsie Siddall, who say the real objective this year is to break the $800,000 target in order to maintain services in the face of inflation, if not to improve the level of service.

More than 400 volunteers are already organized to cover the region from Sidney to Sooke, who will be augmented by some 2,500 students, housewives, labor, management and retired people to canvass in the four-week campaign.

Constable Kept Gun in Box

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — Constable Brian Barkman of the Terrace RCMP detachment testified Wednesday he found a .38-calibre derringer revolver in a shoebox at the home of Constable Laurence Labrech on May 8.

Labrech, 23, of Terrace, was charged with assault causing bodily harm, possession of a restricted firearm, and pointing that firearm at another person, after an incident 10 miles east of here May 8.

In court Wednesday, the charge of pointing a firearm at another person was withdrawn after defence counsel Allan Hope pointed out that the formal charge did not contain the words "without lawful excuse" as required by the law.

Barkman told Judge E. J. Cronin he stopped Labrech's private car about 28 miles west of Terrace after being told by headquarters to intercept the car.

He said he made a preliminary search of the car and found nothing.

Barkman said he later went to the Labrech residence and after searching the dwelling found a .38-calibre derringer in a shoe box.

He said the derringer fitted the description given to police about a gun that allegedly pointed at George Nylan, 20, of Prince Rupert in the incident on Highway 16.

'Unusual' Power Spat Settled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two provincial government jurisdictions argued in B.C. Supreme Court over their own powers and on Wednesday, the Labor Relations Board lost.

Mr. Justic H. E. Hutcheon termed it "an unusal application," but held in favor of the B.C. Assessment Authority in its attempt to quash a ruling the B.C. Labor Relations Board made against it.

The case involved a Surrey assessor, dismissed March 25, 1974. The labor board ordered the assessment authority to reinstate the man to full time employment, holding he was dismissed without proper cause.

The assessment authority, however, which had taken over assessment duties from municipalities, refused to designate the assessor.

Mr. Justice Hutcheon ruled in a Victoria hearing that the labor law under which the board made its order does not apply to the assessment authority.

Unions Unite

VANCOUVER (CP) — A group of unions representing employees of various Cominco Ltd. operations in B.C. has asked the provincial Labor Relations Board for certification as bargaining council.

Members of the United Steelworkers of America representing production workers and of the Association of Commercial and Technical Employees representing office workers already have voted in favor of the move.

Rock Mischief

LANDLEY (CP) — RCMP said Wednesday a juvenile will be charged with committing mischief as a result of a rock-throwing incident on Highway 13, south of Aldergrove, at midnight Tuesday night. A police car was struck by a rock as a patrolman answered a complaint from a resident that shots were being fired at passing cars.

Alarm Boxes Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — The fire department has been gradually removing fire alarm boxes from residential streets and increasing them in commercial and industrial areas because most calls from residential areas come in by telephone. Fire Chief Armand Konig said Wednesday.

World Not Disneyland, U.S. Told

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Canadians took over the editorial page of a Washington newspaper on Wednesday to defend their country against the invective of U.S. writers commenting on the Taiwan Olympic fiasco.

"You Americans are often misguided buffoons when it comes to separating reality from fantasy. The world is not Disneyland," wrote Richard Alain of Fredericton, N.B.

His was one of seven letters to the editor carried by the Washington Star following a column by sports writer David Israels calling Canada "presumptuous and gutless" for preventing the Taiwanese athletes from competing in the games under their Olympic committee banner as representatives of 'the Republic of China:" -

The letters concentrated on the issue of recognizing China rather than the politicizing of Olympic sport, although Neil Louttit of Toronto wrote that "if anyone believes the Olympics are not political, he must be either very naive or else, perhaps, a sports columnist."

Louttit added that Canada declared war on Germany in 1939, while the U.S. waited until 1941, "and I suppose granting sanctuary to draft dodgers in the 1960s was a gutless or deceitful thing to do in the eyes of some Americans."

"Poor Chile, what a record you have there. I suppose it was non-political," wrote George Russell of Hamilton, Ont.

"Neither the citizens of Canada, nor for that matter, of any other nation, deserve this type of verbal abuse. I believe an apology is in order," said Roger Archambault, of Kitchener, Ont.

"Since Davie Israel's claims Canada is gutless, perhaps he can explain why thousands of American youths are travelling around Europe and other parts of the globe with Canadian flags sewn to their knapsacks and jackets," wrote N. Ritchie, of Don Mills, Ont.

Canada acted in the best interests of the "Olympic spirit" in demanding an end to "Taiwan's masquerade," wrote Arnold F. Doucette, of Montreal.

A. F. Davies of Victoria, B.C., said that Canada had been "courageous" in standing up for a question of principle. Furthermore, he contended Canada warned the International Olympic Committee a year ago that there would be a problem with Taiwan.

"As for the presumptuous charge, I must say that sounds rather ironical coming from the good old USA. Presumptuous? Man, look who's talking.

"Anyway, best wishes for your bicentenary," Davies concluded.

The Star carried an editorial beside the letters, headed "no more Montreal," in which it reiterated its earlier editorial criticism of Canada.

"Among the casualties of this controversy is the reputation of our Canadian neighbors as clear-headed operatives in foreign affairs," the editorial said.

City Scorns Agent's Role For Federal Housing Plan

Processing applications for home improvement loans would not be worth the bureaucratic hassle involved, city aldermen decided Tuesday.

The housing committee turned down a suggestion from the provincial housing department that city hall assume responsibility for handling applications under the federal government's Residential Rehabilitation Assistance Program (RRAP).

The program allows homeowners in designated Neighborhood Improvement Program areas loans of up to $10,000 to improve their houses.

Along with the offer to the city came a cash incentive — an agent's fee of $300 for each single-family home application and $50 a unit for multiple-family dwellings.

Ald Murray Glazier, housing committee chairman, said that on the basis of city residents' applications handled to date, Victoria could expect about $50,000 in agent's fees if it took over the processing function.

He said one person assisted by a part-time secretary could handle the chore, but other members of the committee were reluctant to involve the city in the administration of the program.

Mayor Mike Young said the offer might prove attractive to municipalities where there is no office of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, but in Greater Victoria the federal agency is doing a fine job.

Promoter Explains Lucky $10 Bills

A Victoria businessman said Wednesday he is anxious to clear up any misunderstanding about a promotion involving a Florida vacation for U.S. $10 bills bearing three sevens in the serial number.

Richard Daniel Powers, 23, said the promotion, based from an Empress Hotel office, has ended because it is late in the season.

Earlier, Better Business Bureau manager Bill Tindall issued a caution about the scheme because the bureau had tried unsuccessfully to reach Powers for details of the offer in such publications as Midnight and National Enquirer.

Powers, a former U.S. resident, said a Florida company, Vacation America Inc., of Miami, had a promotion on behalf of Florida hotel operators in which certificates were given entitling the holder to a three-day stay in four cities with accommodation free.

"We had a good deal on this promotion," Powers said, explaining that he bought 150-200 of the certificates and made a profit from people who sent in $10 bills with three sevens.

Tindall said BBB — which has its office a few doors down the corridor from Powers' companies — had tried for some time to reach him because it was getting inquiries from Americans who were responding to the ads.

Tindall got letters and a phone call from Florida, Iowa, Pennsylvania and New Jersey asking if the $10 bill offer was legitimate.

"If it is not a responsible business promotion, there's going to be a lot of people hurt all over the country," Tindall said.

Powers promised to be in touch with BBB after talking to the Times.

Blood Drive Continues

The Red Cross is continuing its drive for blood.

A University of Victoria donor clinic Tuesday saw 130 pints collected and Red Cross crews are working today aboard HMCS Provider.

Another clinic — from 2 to 8 p.m. — will be held today at the Mayfair Mall.

The agency is stepping up its blood collections to make up for the annual shortage caused by regular donors going on vacation.

Criminal Should Pay Loss

OTTAWA (CP) — The concept that a law offender should directly pay the victim for the damage or loss he or she causes should become a basic principle in criminal law, the Law Reform Commission said in a working paper Wednesday.

And, says the commission, compensation from the government for damage or loss to a victim of crime should only exist as a supplement to restitution, in cases where the offender cannot be found or cannot pay.

"Restitution and compensation have been chosen for early consideration because they represent means of directing more attention to the victim of crime, stressing the responsibility of the offender and the state to make up for the harm done to the greatest possible extent," the commission says.

The working paper is a basis for future, final recommendations which will be made to the government for a policy on sentencing and dispositions.

Under the commission's proposal, courts could still impose fines for crimes, and restitution would be considered a separate matter. In some cases only fines would be imposed because some crimes, such as a parking offence, have no specific victim, as they are public orders.

Restitution, described by the commission as personal, could take the form of money, an apology or work aimed at restoring the victim's "financial physical or psychological loss."

Under current law, there are several rarely-used provisions for ordering restitution and even the most widely-used provision, ordering restitution as a condition of probation, is practically ignored.

Between 1967 and 1972, restitution was ordered for only six of 4,294 convicted appearances in court, the commission says. However, restitution is sometimes not on record as it can be used unofficially on adjournment before the offender is sentenced.

In a research paper accompanying the working paper, Professor Allan Linden of York University says prison authorities, judges and Crown lawyers all play down the potential role of restitution in criminal justice.

He says it is the defence counsel who should be really concerned with restitution because "it is in the interest of the offender to demonstrate to the court that he has repented and that he wishes to make amends."

"If he repays the money or property taken or if he pays damages to his victim, his sentence will probably be reduced."

On the other hand, if a person convicted of fraud has a choice between paying back the $50,000 he embezzled or spending an extra year in jail, it is not likely the defence would raise the matter of restitution.

And seldom do the courts, which is why the commission says restitution should become a basic principle.

It recommends that consideration of a claim for damages or loss be made under the "more relaxed rules of procedure" at the stage where an offender is being sentenced rather than during the criminal proceedings. If an assessment of the amount of loss is complicated or time-consuming the judge could let the court clerk or administrator do it.

Or existing provincial crime compensation boards could make the assessment, but the commission prefers to link restitution with sentencing which requires the control of the court.

The commission says that while many offenders are poor, most of them could afford to pay for their crimes, the most frequent crimes after traffic offences being assault and theft.

Cadets Plan Flag Service

More than 250 officers and cadets from HMCS Quadra will stage the ceremony of the flags on the legislature grounds at 8:15 p.m. Sunday.

The ceremony, which dates back hundreds of years, features a color party, armed guards, a band and gun crews.

The cadets, who come from across Canada, are undergoing training at HMCS Quadra at Comox.

GOLF CLUB SMUGGLERS CONFESS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thirty-one golfers who smuggled golf clubs from the United States voluntarily told police last week about their actions after hearing about police investigations into golf club smuggling through the media.

Constable Cranston de St. Remy of the RCMP customs and excise branch said Wednesday the 31 golfers made "voluntary disclosures" and paid more than $3,000 in duties in taxes on 31 sets of clubs with a retail value of about $1,000.

The voluntary disclosures mean the golfers keep their clubs after paying duty and federal sales tax ranging from $70 to $100 on each set.

Layoffs Decimate Union

PRINCE RUPERT — The 325 employees to be laid off by the government-owned Canadian Cellulose sulphite mill in October "don't know what they hell they're going to do," a union spokesman said Wednesday.

The layoffs cut in half the membership of Local 4, of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, said Angus MacPhee.

He said the move has been "anticipated for quite some time" due to the obvious reluctance of the Socred government to operate CanCel and the declining pulp market.

The Socred administration, said MacPhee, has publicly announced it is philisophically opposed to taking direct part in the private sector, but the union must proceed on the basis that CanCel will continue with its plans to switch to Kraft mill production by 1978, he said.

MacPhee said the PPWC has negotiated severance pay over the last two contracts for the laid-off employees, and a seniority re-hiring system will take effect when the new Kraft mill opens.

"We didn't want them picking and choosing out the radical unionists," said MacPhee.

CanCel president Ronald M. Gross gave the union 91 days notice of the layoffs and the company had previously announced it is investing $100 million in modifying the facility for 1978 target startup date.

The company said the move was prompted by severely depressed market for sulphite pulp.

CanCel was purchased by the NDP administration and is part of B.C. Cellulose operations.

MLA Graham Lea (NDP — Prince Rupert) said Wednesday the decision "comes from a pocket book mind with no thought of the human side or the social side."

"I don't think anyone should be lulled into thinking that this is a corporate decision by the company, although they may have recommended it," he said.

OFFICERS HELD FOR COUP TRY

RANGOON (Reuter) — The Burmese government announced Tuesday the arrest of a group of army officers who, it said, had plotted to kill President Ne Win and the secretary of the state council, U San Yu.

The Burmese state radio said the plot was foiled and the ringleaders arrested on July 2.

After the announcement, some troop movements were seen in Rangoon and spot checks were made on cars. But generally the capital was normal.

The radio announcement said the plot was engineered by three army captains and supported by 11 other military officers, all of whom were arrested.

The announcement followed persistent rumors about the arrests of several junior and senior army officers.

President Ne Win, 65, chairman of the Burmese Socialist Program party, came to power in a bloodless coup in 1962.

The radio said the conspirators would soon be brought before a special tribunal, but it gave no date for the trial.

Clinic Sets Record

Crew members from HMCS Restigouche won the Pacific Fleet blood donors' shield Wednesday during a Red Cross clinic that saw a record 535 pints collected.

The clinic — held aboard HMCS Provider — beat the old one-day record of 516 pints set last January.

A Red Cross spokesman said 100 per cent of the Restigouche's crew available turned out to give blood.

Smokers, Just Watch It!

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Smokers should tread carefully downtown — whether in a chartered accountant's office, a feed store, a fashion emporum or a scuba shop.

Habitual puffers may be asked to stub that cigarette or cigar, and some merchants have the clout to make it stick.

Fire Chief Eric Simmons said Wednesday 13 retail premises are armed with a special permit from the fire department which allows prosecution of a smoker who refuses to put out a cigarette.

Although there haven't been any prosecutions, culprits can be fined up to $100.

The city of Victoria decided against passing a special bylaw prohibiting use of smoking materials in retail stores, a move taken recently by Burnaby.

When first approached by downtown merchants two years ago to pass a similar bylaw, the city pointed out an existing provision in the Fire Prevention bylaw, which the fire department could authorize on request.

The section empowers the department to prohibit smoking in any theatre, store or public place where combustible materials are "handled, stored, manufactured or sold."

The problem with passing a municipal bylaw, said Simmons, is that it has to be enforced, either by police or fire officials.

Under the current procedure, the store itself can police the non-smokers haven and authorities are only called in when an ornery smoker won't comply.

Premises off limits to smokers are: department stores including The Bay, Eaton's, Simpsons-Sears and Odeon Theatres.

Others are Metropolitan Church, Viteway Bakery and Organic Food Shop; C. J. Fashion (Girl Boutique), Rickard Crawford and Co., chartered accountants; Wilson's Business Services; Buckerfields, Waller Antiques; The Scuba Shop and Munro's Book Stores.

Also frowning on smoking are Victoria General and Royal Jubilee Hospitals, and many doctors' offices.

Permits were requested, said Simmons mainly because stores don't want smoking on the premises due to the danger to dry goods. Owners want the protection.

Saanich fire chief Harold Gains says there is no smoking policy in that municipality.

A smoker for 25 years, "until I got sensible", Gains says since Victoria has the major department stores, there has been no move towards implementing the special permit policy in Saanich.

He says it's a good idea. "There's no doubt smoking creates a hazard."

Management already has the right to request a customer's co-operation to butt the smoke on a store premises and that seems to settle the issue in Saanich, he says.

In Victoria's designated stores however, the only thing left for smokers is to fume — with indignation, not tobacco.

WANTED: A TRAVELLING MAN

McCarthy to Name Convention Chief

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy promised today to appoint a co-ordinator for British Columbia to try to bring more convention business to the province.

She said she expects to have an announcement on the appointment soon.

The province handles $45 million worth of convention business every year, she said, "but unfortunately we haven't had anyone acting on behalf of the government and working with private enterprise to make sure we are tying down conventions."

The co-ordinator would travel throughout the U.S. and Canada trying to convince organizations to hold their conventions in B.C.

McCarthy said most conventions are planned from four to seven years in advance and the co-ordinator would travel to conventions to convince delegates to hold future meetings in the province.

Increased convention business could mean 400 to 500 people at a time coming to Victoria and the co-ordinator would also work to convince convention delegates to travel up-Island for a couple of days after meetings are over.

The co-ordinator would also seek to have delegates at U.S. conventions in places like Seattle come up to B.C. on the Princess Marguerite after the end of meetings.

McCarthy said the co-ordinator would be working in a competitive field but increased convention business is one of the first projects she wants to get started as the minister of travel industry.

The appointment of a co-ordinator is part of the re-organization of the travel industry department, she said.

Meanwhile the man behind a radio ad campaign aimed at bringing more tourists to Victoria has set a deadline of 5 p.m. Tuesday to collect the $50,000 needed to finance the blitz.

Richard Truman, of Truman-Glover Advertising Ltd., officially kicked off his effort to raise the cash at a meeting Wednesday.

About 50 Victoria businessmen heard six radio commercials which would be aired on stations throughout the Lower Mainland, the Fraser Valley and the Okanagan.

Victoria's three radio stations, he told the meeting, have promised to join the campaign and plans call for posters, lapel stickers and postcards to be distributed.

Truman told the businessmen their pledges would only be considered binding if the $50,000 goal is met by deadline time.

His own firm, he said, is pledging $2,000 towards the campaign.

The fund will be handled by Al Mactier, of the Royal Trust Co. and Ted Balderson, general manager of the Empress Hotel.

Administrators would be Bob Harvey, CP Air's Victoria general manager and Al Frame general manager of the Classic Car Museum.

Five Ferry Firings

Five employees of the provincially-owned ferry Princess Marguerite were fired Wednesday after a hearing and investigation of money taken in from liquor sales on the ship.

The five, all members of the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks (BRASC), are expected to appeal the decision.

A BRASC spokesman said only small amounts of money were involved in the case. Officials of the B.C. Steamship Co. which operates the Marguerite, were not available for comment today and the exact amount of money involved is not known.

Under the union contract employees cannot be fired until after a hearing is held. The five were "held out of service" since the weekend, but were not officially dismissed until the end of Wednesday's hearing.

The union held a meeting Tuesday in Vancouver at which plans were made to attend the formal hearing into the allegation. BRASC general chairman Ron Welch was among those attending the hearing.

Dave Price, superintendent of passenger services for B.C. Steamship Co. Wednesday declined to comment on the hearing.

Development Freeze Urged In Beacon Hill

A two-member delegation from the Beacon Hill Park Association today urged Victoria parks committee to freeze further development in the park until a comprehensive plan has been established.

John Newberry, association president, and Terry Reksten, vice-president, said association members are concerned by continuing evidence that park development is allowed to take place in an ad hoc, piecemeal manner without reference to an over-all plan.

Reksten said many of the facilities developed in the park, including formal planting areas, "people areas" and the animal enclosure are good in themselves but do not appear related to any planned program.

"This is why we have been objecting to some of the changes in the past," she said. "If new construction is not the result of careful planning you will be making more mistakes which will be hard to correct."

Her remarks were in reference to a recent offer by the International Order of Hoo-Hoo, a fraternal lumber industry group, to build a wooden picnic shelter in the park.

Reksten said the group should be complimented on its public spirited attitude, but the matter should be held in abeyance until a plan for over-all development has been prepared.

The committee indicated it would wait for a detailed brief from the association, which the delegation said should be ready by the end of summer. Before that, a public hearing will be held to enlist the views of individuals and other organizations.

Williams, Hydro To Talk

Labor and management representatives in the B.C. Hydro dispute will meet tonight with Labor Minister Allan Williams and mediator Charles Stewart.

Fred Trotter president of Local 378 of the Office and Technical Employees Union said today Williams asked for the meeting to discuss the positions of both sides.

The union began work disruptions, including picket action, on a selective basis July 6 after it served strike notice on the company.

Meanwhile, B.C. Hydro took no further selective lockout action today.

Some 557 employees were locked out Tuesday and Wednesday in a response by B.C. Hydro administration to the union's selective strike action.

'Sick, Vicious Racism'

By LIZ HUGHES

A "sick, vicious kind of racism" is exhibited in letters sent last week to several Victorians telling them they had been picked to play host to large Pakistani families, Human Rights Branch director Kathleen Ruff said Wednesday.

Ruff said she has asked the attorney-general's department to look into the letters and the case has been referred to the RCMP.

"There are people who are actively working to promote racial hatred and tension in B.C. and the message they should take is we all should be equally active to promote tolerance and understanding," Ruff said.

The letters were sent by a fictitious group calling itself the Toronto Central Branch of the Canadian Society for Commonwealth Relations. The signature was false and the Toronto address phoney.

The letters said the recipients had been chosen to participate in a "Lend a Helping Hand Plan."

"You will be pleased to know that we have assigned a typical family group from Pakistan to be guests in your home for the next few months," the letters say.

The society promised to supply adequate quantities of curry, rice and powdered goat's milk to feed them.

The letters add that the "typical" family consists of father, mother, nine children, wife's brother, husband's grandmother and her children.

James Bay Ready to Fight As Block-Busters Try Again

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

After several years of relative peace and stability, James Bay residents are again witnessing block-busting tactics and receiving not-so-subtle pressure from developers and real estate salesmen who want them to sell their homes.

But this time as area residents prepare to counter the threat, James Bay won't stand alone.

Community development worker Lorne De Girolamo said today concerned residents of the James Bay area have joined with four other communities — Fairfield, Fernwood, Blanshard Court and Victoria West — in an agency which calls itself Communities United for Action.

The problem of uncontrolled development, often entailing demolition of sound single-family homes, faces all these areas, he said, and for the past six weeks neighborhood representatives have been meeting weekly to discuss ways to preserve their quality of life.

De Girolamo said a proposal for action is being developed by CUA and he hopes this will be ready to submit to Victoria city council within four weeks. He declined to disclose details.

Meanwhile, at a meeting of about 60 James Bay residents Wednesday night, there were several volunteers to document facts and figures which will be conveyed to council to underline the urgency of the situation.

De Girolamo told the meeting that the rumble of bulldozers is a familiar sound in James Bay these days, because so many of its homeowners have no personal interest in preserving a quiet residential character.

Of about 6,000 individual residences, fewer than 800 are houses, he said, and of these more than half are owned by absentee landlords.

Among examples of harassment and pressure mentioned at the meeting were letters from developers, and calls at the door by real estate salesmen who inform the resident that his neighbor is selling.

De Girolamo said today one such caller was told in no uncertain terms that the homeowner wasn't interested, and that he and his neighbors liked the community the way it was.

"The realtor replied, 'Look, that's all right, it's just a matter of time.' Isn't that incredible?"

The only council member present at Wednesday night's meeting was Ald. Bill Tindall, who urged residents to demand action from their MLAs. The provincial government alone can change the Municipal Act to give municipalities more power in dealing with speculators, he said.

James Bay's fight against highrise development several years ago was spearheaded by the James Bay Community Association and resulted in the down-zoning of several areas.

But De Girolamo said the reduction of density still allowed the developers plenty of room to operate, and the seeming air of stability was little more than an illusion.

The threat which had "lain dormant" for so long reappeared some 18 months ago, when complaints of block-busting tactics again started surfacing, he added.

The current campaign in the area is not being organized by any particular group but he said it is possible that the residents concerned "may have some relationship" at a later date with the James Bay Community Resources Board.

Anybody Seen Vandal With I.Q. of a Tree?

A vandal dumped three or four of the large cement decorative flower pots on Beacon Avenue in Sidney late Wednesday.

Sidney RCMP said the big flower pots were tipped off their stands, spewing dirt and flowers into the street.

Regular patrols were being made at the time, but "one minute they were there and the next they were over," a spokesman for the detachment said.

No suspects were found, but the spokesman said police are looking for someone with "about the I.Q. of a tree."

Pub Plans Chilled by Aldermen

An entrepreneur who wants to establish a British-style local pub in the James Bay area today left a meeting of Victoria's finance committee asking aldermen whether his efforts are "an exercise in futility."

Mayor Mike Young agreed they probably are.

Young told Roger Mawdsley council's lack of enthusiasm for the concept of neighborhood pubs stems from the way regulations are worded under liquor laws.

The mayor said it's not a case of council merely approving one application for one pub — to approve Mawdsley's bid it would first have to give blanket approval to the principle of such pubs in Victoria, and council is worried it may not have the statutory right to approve or reject.

He said when such concerns were aired several months ago with Vic Woodland, general manager of the Liquor Administration Branch, Woodland assured the city no pub location would be approved unless the city was also in favor.

But Young noted that the manager "is not immortal" and the possibility exists that at some future time council will find it has no rights in the matter.

Mawdsley, who said he felt his premises at 512 Simcoe Street would be a "prime" location for a pub, told aldermen he would counter residents' concerns on the drinking-driving question by ensuring that only residents of the immediate James Bay area would be admitted to the premises.

Some kind of indentification system would be used, he said.

Mawdsley said he comes from a small town in Lancashire with only 7,000 inhabitants where there were seven pubs but seldom any problems with excessive drinking.

Yet in Victoria, most of the licensed premises are in the downtown area and require patrons to "drive from all over the place."

The "beer-trough" atmosphere prevails with waiters dumping a dozen glasses of beer on the table and glowering at customers if they don't drink up fast enough, he claimed.

Mayor Young claimed that his picture of "halcyon conditions" on the British drinking scene wasn't entirely accurate. Young said he came from Glasgow which was "a disaster" in that respect.

The committee referred the application for discussion by council's caucus group.

Advertising in Turmoil As Companies Attack

TORONTO (CP) — Legal adviser Wayne McCracken says comparative advertising, where companies attack each other's products head-on, is in turmoil in Canada.

A Toronto lawyer, he represents eight advertising agencies and also is a specialist in anti-trust court actions.

He said in a recent interview he is representing eight companies facing the threat of court action over comparative ads.

"I doubt that these cases will ever go to court, but it shows that the whole field of comparative advertising is in a turmoil."

Yet, big companies continue to battle with what has come to be known as "knock ads," although a United States study indicates the value of them as compared to normal ads is marginal.

Probably the best known of the knock-ad clashes has been between Coca-Cola and Pepsi, the giant soft-drink rivals.

It flared when Pepsi produced ads that claimed half the confessed Coke fans who took a blindfolded taste found they preferred Pepsi.

Coca-Cola responded with their own taste tests that concluded a third of the Pepsi fans preferred Fresca, a fruit-based drink made by the Coke company.

Probably the most expensive campaigns have been waged by the automobile manufacturers.

American Motors' was the first to get into the act in 1974 with their commercials on warranty coverage. Ford Motor Co. has been using comparative ads to push its Granada models over those of rival Cadillac and Mercedes.

In the gum market, Beachnut has been pushing a new line called Carefree in a knock-ad fight against Trident, the leader.

"If a manufacturer is hit by a comparative ad campaign, it's likely he'll counter-attack," McCracken said.

Whenever possible, he advises clients not to get into this kind of head-on slugging match.

"But some companies are very hot to do comparative ads after they've been attacked."

The result is advertising with few ground rules and at great expense to the combatants.

Gone are the gentlemanly days when the toughest line an advertiser took was to compare a product to Brand X.

Canada's 220 advertising agencies last year earned $115 million in gross revenue on $675 million worth of billings.

Despite the harshness of some of the ads, agencies still have to observe guidelines drawn up last year by the Canadian Advertising Advisory Board.

Although the guidelines are voluntary, many ad agencies still have to get clearance from the Canadian Radio-Television Telecommunications Commission and two federal ministeries.

Ireland's Canadian Trade Up

TORONTO (CP) — Ireland's export trade with Canada, led by dairy products is on the rise again after a slump, James Mongey of the Irish Export Board, said today.

The value of exports last year was about $37.5 million, an increase of about two per cent over 1974.

After a slow start this year, exports doubled in April and May compared to the same two months in 1975. Mongey said this indicates "the strong renewed growth seems set to continue."

Mongey, Canadian manager of the board, said the increase came mainly from Ireland's agricultural sector which experienced a 51 per cent hike worldwide in export trade.

Among the agricultural goods Ireland sells to Canada are cheese for processing, dairy derivatives, and skim milk powder.

Canada also bought more industrial goods, including computers, container tanks, tools for the automotive trade and medical equipment.

Brady Sets Tennis Sights On National Ranking List

max low

Few tennis fans who avidly watch on television things like Wimbledon and Forest Hills would actually call Ian Brady a world-beater.

But the 28-year-old Australian is a "Vancouver Island Beater" — and nobody would argue with that after his performance at Oak Bay Tennis Club last Saturday.

The hottest favorite for the City's men's singles title in many years, Brady demolished Russ Hartley 6-3, 6-0 in the final.

It was the third straight singles victory in Vancouver Island Lawn Tennis Association-sponsored tournaments for the Aussie since he ended a two-year contract with Richmond Tennis Club on the mainland and came here to take over as head pro. at Edgar Rhomberg's Island Indoor Tennis centre in Saanich.

Of course, Brady is now the top-ranked player on the Island. No local player has taken a set off him yet. And, judging by Saturday's exhibition of sheer power, no one is likely to, either.

Not that you can blame young Rusty Hartley. He served well and hit his ground strokes crisply until, at 3-3, Brady apparently decided that was it!

Then, with a barage of devastating forehand returns and finely-angled volleys, the agile Aussie had his opponent groping all over the court as he quickly broke service twice to end that set and breeze through a second without losing another game.

Graciously, Brady came off the court and praised Rusty as 'a nice-looking young player who probably has more potential than anyone on the Island." That may, indeed, be true. After all, he was in three finals and picked up one doubles title. But Rusty himself, though only 19, must realize he just isn't in Brady's class.

On last season's record, Brady was ranked 20th in Canada. He's now rated fourth in B.C. and with his partner Ian Pomerinke of Vancouver has formed the province's No. 1 doubles combination for three years.

Yet back home in Brisbane (where such serve-and-volley power merchants seem to be everywhere) he was ranked only 15th in the State of Queensland.

In our little tennis corner of the world, though, Ian Brady is an exciting player to watch — and it looks as though we on the Island are going to get plenty of opportunities for Brady-watching.

For Ian, his Australian wife Andrea and their three-and-a-half-year-old daughter Rachel all "love it here." They've bought a home and Ian says they're staying.

Because of a clash in dates and because he has his eyes on the Canadian ranking list, Ian won't play in the B.C. Open, Victoria's tournament on the Pacific Satelite Circuit.

IAN BRADY
. . . No. 20 last year

Instead, he will compete in the $10,000 Pacific Open in Vancouver Aug. 2 to 7 and the following week will play in the national championships in Winnipeg.

Brady will be back on the Island after that to compete in the Last Chance Tournament and to give a special exhibition, possibly with Pomerinke, at Henderson Park on Saturday, Sept. 4, during the finals of the third annual Victoria Times Public Parks Tournament.

Border City's Gamble May Show Big Return

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A decision to gamble on this border city's economy will produce an overwhelming payoff this weekend for organizers of the $200,000 Canadian Open golf championship.

A field of 150 golfers headed by defending chhampion Tom Weiskopf is already assured of playing in front of the largest galleries in tournament history.

Only 15 months ago, the Royal Canadian Golf Association (RCGA) reversed an earlier decision to pull the tournament out of Windsor because of concern about the city's auto-oriented economy.

It took a guarantee that tournament finance chairman Harry Fooks says now was substantial to keep the Canadian Open at the Essex Golf and Country Club.

Given a reprieve, local officials staged a sales blitz that produced a record advance sale in late October and a record for total sales by late June.

Fooks said late Tuesday the tournament had already topped last year's record gate receipts of $355,000 at the Royal Montreal Golf Club by $100,000.

Given good weather, Fooks said, this year's box office take could approach $600,000, almost double last year's total.

Although the neighboring U.S. metropolis of Detroit has a population many times that of Windsor and no major tournament of its own, most ticket-buyers are Canadians.

Fooks says only about 25 per cent of the advance tickets were sold to Americans.

Confronting the golfers who started this morning in pursuit of a $40,000 first prize will be a par 70, 6,696-yard course. The field will be cut to the low 70 and ties after Friday's second round.

Back for another run at Weiskopf is Jack Nicklaus, who lost to the champion on the first hole of a playoff. Weiskopf and Nicklaus finished the regulation 72 holes with 274 totals.

The field includes most tour regulars, including Masters winner Ray Floyd, U.S. Open winner Jerry Pate and British Open champion Johnny Miller.

Heading a contingent of 18 Canadians is hometown favorite Bob Pannasiuk, the only Windsor golfer in the tournament, and tour veteran George Knudson of Toronto.

Chris Ignites Sooke Attack

Chris Carolan hit a single and a double Wednesday night to boost Sooke Merchants to a 7-0 shutout over Matthews Heating in a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League game at Central Park.

The win moved Sooke into a tie for third place with Ingraham Hotel.

Carolan scored once and drove in two runs during his four appearances at the platé.

At Heywood Avenue Park, Gary Morrison pitched a three-hitter and drove in two runs with a single in the first inning to lead Remco Office Supplies to a 5-1 decision over Esquimalt Juveniles in Heywood Men's League play.

Harvey's Sporting Good extended its lead to 11 points in the Sidney Men's Association by edging KOA 2-1 at Sanscha Park and in Victoria Senior Women's League play at Hyacinth Park, CJVI Vicettes defeated Ingraham Hotel 12-6 and Hygrade Radio bounced MacDonalds Furniture Seniors, 17-3.

Wrong Athletes Tested?

MONTREAL (CP) — All Olympic medal winners have their urine tested for signs of disallowed drugs, but the director of the doping control program for the Montreal Games questions this.

Dr. Robert Dugal said in a recent interview that those using dope are usually the losers.

He said it would be better if all athletes were tested, but added that to test all the athletes "you would need a $20 million laboratory with 150 people and 150 machines."

Olympic athletes are forbidden to use about 125 different substances. And this year, controversial synthetic hormones called anabolic steroids have been banned for the first time. These are substances said to increase the muscle power of athletes.

Women's Crews In Three Finals

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada will have three crews pursuing medals at the women's Olympic rowing finals Saturday after two victories in the repechage Wednesday.

Tricia Smith of Vancouver and Betsy Craig of Brockville, Ont., advanced directly to the final with a victory in pairs competition Monday. There are no semi-finals in women's rowing, which is making its first appearance of the Olympics.

In Wednesday's repechages — second chances — Bev Cameron of Ottawa and Cheryl Howard of Richmond, staged a late sprint in the double to nip France at the wire.

Rowing third at the 750-metre mark, the Canadian girls raised their rate to 38 strokes a minute and flew home. They caught France on the last stroke to qualify with East Germany, which won in three minutes, 34.99 seconds.

Canada clocked 3:42.73 and France 3:43.00, with Austria finishing last.

The Canadian eight which includes Ina DeLure of Victoria, finished fourth behind the United States, Romania and West Germany, beating out Poland and Holland to earn its berth. The United States clocked 3:13.26 and the Canadians 3:16.44.

Canada missed a fourth berth in the finals when the cox four finished fifth. Holland won in 3:39.88 with Romania second, the Soviet Union third, the U.S. fourth and Great Britain sixth behind Canada which clocked 3:44.41.

Colette Pepin of Boucherville, Que., sculling the single in place of Monica Boettcher of Calgary, out with mononucleosis, placed last. Miss Pepin sculled with a dislocated thumb.

The women's cox squad also rowed fourth and last, out of contention. The squad and Miss Pepin now go to Saturday's petit finals along with the cox four to settle seventh to 12th places.

The eight faces the U.S., Romania, West Germany, East Germany and the Soviet Union in the final. The double goes against the Soviet Union, Bulgaria, the U.S., Norway and East Germany in its Saturday race.

The pairs team of Smith and Craig has East Germany, Bulgaria, the Soviet Union, Romania and West Germany in its opposition.

IAAF EXECUTIVE BACKS S. AFRICA

MONTREAL (CP) — The leaders of world track and field have recommended that South Africa remain in the International Amateur Athletic Association (IAAF).

A document that became available at the meeting of the IAAF congress Wednesday says a majority of the 15-member executive council opposes a resolution to expel South Africa for practising racial discrimination in track and field.

The council says it believes the South African Amateur Athletic Union "has succeeded in making a number of positive steps towards the aim of fully integrated athletics in South Africa, and that they should be given the opportunity of making further progress."

Soviets Hand Canadians A Beating

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada was not exected to win its Olympic men's basketball clash against the Soviet Union on Wednesday night, but no one expected such a poor showing.

The Soviets, defending Olympic gold medallists, scored an easy 108-85 win over Canada to move into first place in the Group A standings with three wins and no losses. Canada and Cuba are tied for second with two wins and a loss.

The United States remained the only other unbeaten team in the competition with a 112-83 victory over Yugoslavia to move into sole possession of first place in Group B with a 3-0 mark.

Adrian Dantley had 26 points as did Scott May as the Americans overcame a 55-51 halftime deficit to hand Yugoslavia its first loss in three starts.

In other group A games, Cuba downed Japan 97-56 and Edward Palubinskas scored 48 points in Australia's 120-117 victory over Mexico.

Puerto Rico defeated Egypt 2-0 by default as a result of Egypt's withdrawal from the Games and Italy topped Czechoslovakia 79-69 in other Group B games.

Canada's women, winless in their first two games, take on the United States tonight. The Canadian men meet Australia and Mexico next.

The story of Wednesday's Russia-Canada game was the poor shooting of the Canadians. In the first half, they connected on just 15 of 43 field goal attempts for dismal 35-per-cent average. They finished the game with a 41-per-cent average, converting 35 of 85 tries.

The Soviets scored on 50 of 85 field goal attempts for a 59-percent shooting average.

"I guess there isn't much to say," said Canadian coach Jack Donohue. "I don't think it was very much of a game. It wasn't a very tough game after about 10 minutes.

"Their size and their depth really make them good. That plus the fact they really are physical. We try that way also, but we don't have as many people to do that as they do.

"They are the best team. I mean they work together as a team. They do that better than anyone I know."

Vladimir Tkachenko, a seven foot, three-inch centre-forward, led the Russians with 22 points. Vladimir Arzamaskov, benched for much of the second half, had 16 points in the first 20 minutes.

Derek Sankey, a 27-year-old Vancouver teacher, scored all of his 18 points in the second half to lead Canada. Guard Bill Robinson of Chemainus, B.C., one of the few starters who turned in a steady performance, had 10 points as did Romel Raffin of Kitchener, Ont.

Phil Tollestrup of Raymond, Alta., who had 26 points against Japan on Sunday and 25 against Cuba on Monday, managed just four points in the 22 minutes he played against the Soviets.

Sailors Keep Hopes Afloat

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Canada's Olympic yachting hopes are not over by a long shot," skipper Larry Woods said Wednesday.

Woods of Winona, Ont., was elated by his own fourth-place finish in the third of the Olympic races and by the fact Canadians were in the top five in three other races.

The comeback followed gloomy results Tuesday and rekindled modest hopes of a medal for Canada.

Colin Park of Vancouver turned in the best Canadian performance of the day following a dismal 20th-place finish in the first race and an unfortunate disqualification in the second. He read the light winds carefully in the third race and steered home third in the 470 class.

Hans Fogh of Toronto was fifth in the Flying Dutchman race, while Allan Leibel of Toronto had a fifth in the Tempest.

Sandy Riley of Toronto, also disqualified in the second race, regained his composure to finish eighth in the Finn class. Glen Dexter and his fellow students from Nova Scotia recorded a respectable 10th-place finish in the Soling race.

VOLLEYBALL TEAMS FIND FOES TOUGH

MONTREAL (CP) — Both of Canada's young volleyball teams went down to defeat Wednesday night, officially ending their chances of making it to the semi-final rounds of Olympic competition.

For the women's team, losers to Hungary, a four-set loss snuffed slim but real hopes. For the men, who went out in three straight sets at the hands of South Korea, the inevitable arrived.

Korea dropped Canada 15-7, 15-5, 15-8 to hand the host country its third consecutive straight-set defeat. Canada had some hopes of pulling off a victory in one of its preliminary-round matches in Group A, but with an 0-3 record and hard-charging Cuba last on the schedule, the Canadians seem doomed to go winless in their first Games competition in the sport.

Canadian coach Bill Neville, a Seattle native living in St. Bruno, Que., pegged aspirations of a victory on the game against Korea, but it proved stronger than he had anticipated.

World champion Poland leads the group with a 3-0 record, while Cuba, Czechoslovakia and Korea all are 1-1. The top two teams advance to the semi-finals.

The Canadian women came up short of the drive they showed against Peru, and Hungary took a 15-13, 15-10, 9-15, 15-9 victory.

QUEEN OF THE '76 Olympics, Romania's Nadia Comaneci swings down during her performance on uneven parallel bars at the Montreal Forum Wednesday where she scored a perfect 10 points. Comaneci got five perfect marks to win women's all-round title. See story. (CP Wirephoto).

Nothing Uneven Here

All Hail Nadia As Olga Deposed

MONTREAL (CP) — Nadia Comaneci of Romania finished Wednesday what she started Sunday—the transition from a precocious princess to the new world queen of gymnastics.

And the transition has been painful for the young lady Comaneci has replaced, Olga Korbut of the Soviet Union.

While Comaneci, 14, stood before a cheering crowd of 16,000 on the gold-medal podium at the packed Montreal Forum, Korbut, 21, sat sadly in the Russian dressing room nursing a sore leg.

Comaneci scored two perfect 10s Wednesday—her fourth and fifth this week—on the uneven bar and balance team en route to the all-round title. She will have a shot at four more gold medals tonoght when she competes in the apparatus finals.

Nelli Kim of Russia, who scored a perfect 10 on the vault, took the silver medal and another Soviet, Ludmila Tourischeva, 23, the 1972 all-round champion, won the bronze.

In the team compulsories last Sunday, Comaneci scored a 10 on the uneven bar—the first ever perfect performance in the Olympics. Her Russian coaches say Nadia had perfect scores on 17 occasions leading up to the Games.

She scored 10s again Monday in optional team uneven bar and beam. Wednesday, Teodora Ungureanu of Romania was fourth and Korbut, the tiny superstar who stole the show at the 1972 Munich Games as a 13-year-old, faded to fifth.

The men's all-round championship also decided Wednesday, went to Nikolai Andrianov of the Soviet Union. Two-time winner Sawo Kato of Japan took the silver and countryman Mitsuo Tsukahara won the bronze.

Korbut lost any chance she had for a medal with a 9.5 performance on the balance beam—the apparatus she had used to capture hearts in Munich.

The score came moments after Comaneci was awarded her perfect score on the uneven bars. Soviet team coach Larissa Latynina, who holds nine Olympic gold medals, said Comaneci's perfect score had nothing to do with Korbut's poor performance.

"Olga hurt her leg and had to make some changes in her routine and she exceeded the time limit by a little bit," Latynina said.

Three Canadian girls were in the final 36, thanks to a new rule limiting the final to three competitors from each country.

Karen Kelsall of Surrey, B.C. finished 27th, Patti Rope of Cambridge, Ont., was 29th and Nancy McDonnell of Toronto was 33rd.

Philip Delesalle of Victoria finished 22nd and Keith Carter of Winnipeg placed 24th. Pierre Leclerc of Ste. Therese, Que., completed only two of the exercises before he hurt his heel in the floor exercises and had to withdraw.

DISAPPOINTED at fifth place finish, 1972 Olympic champion Olga Korbut of Russia hides back tears at missing a medal in gymnastics competition. (CP Wirephoto).

Soccer Team Out

TORONTO (CP) — North Korea ended Canada's hopes of an Olympic soccer medal when it defeated the host country 3-1 Wednesday in a Group D game before a crowd of 12,638.

Canada lost its two games in the preliminary round and is eliminated from further play.

The Soviet Union and North Korea, the other two teams in the group, both beat Canada and advance to the quarter-finals.

Korea opened the scoring after 16 minutes of the first half on a goal by Se Uk An.

Canada tied the score six minutes into the second half after a free kick. Gary Ayre of Vancouver pushed the ball into the goal area and after a scramble, Jim Douglas of St. Catharines, Ont., scored from about two yards out.

North Korea took the lead 15 minutes later when Song Nam Hong scored an easy goal after taking a pass from Gwangsok Kim.

North Korea increased its lead to 3-1 at the 35-minute mark after some casual defence by the Canadians.

They were caught flat footed as Hong put the ball into the left corner of the net for his second goal of the game after a cross by An.

With the loss it is the last time the present Canadian team will be playing together. Bob Bolitho of Victoria and Ray Telford of Nanaimo were Vancouver island representatives on the squad.

Coach Colin Morris said that with the team's elimination from Olympic competition the players are no longer on the protected list with the North American Soccer League. He said he expects a good number of them to be signed to professional teams.

Morris, whose contract as coach of the national team ends Aug. 31, said that when the team went behind 2-1 the players hearts were willing but their legs were not.

"I couldn't find a group of players to play with greater heart and "determination," Morris said.

Winner Would Share His Gold

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Nadia Comaneci won the first gold medal for Romania in gymnastics Tuesday, Nancy Garapick of Halifax gained Canada's third bronze, a trio of Russian swimmers gave East Germany its come-uppance in the pool and a male gold medal winner wanted to share his good fortune with his female teammate, with whom he tied, but was told he couldn't.

In one of the few Olympic disciplines in which sex tests do not apply, Margaret Murdoch of the United States made Games history by becoming the first woman to win a shooting medal, a silver in the smallbore, three-position event.

But even the fellow-countryman who beat her believed it should have been a gold.

She matched Larry Bassham's total score of 1,162 of a possible 1,200, but was counted out under a tie-breaking rule that gives the edge to the marksman with the higher score in the final round.

"This is arbitrary rubbish about ties," said Bassham after the judges had spent 3½ hours examining targets before reaching their decision. "There should be two Olympic champions this time."

Murdoch's marksmanship and the continued prominence of the U.S. men's swimming team gave the U.S. three of the nine gold medals awarded during the day, pushing their total to 10 after 29 events.

Backstroker Ulrike Richter, who had already shared a gold Sunday night in the 4x100 medley relay, ran the East German winning streak to five in women's swimming and seven golds over-all with a comfortable victory in the individual 100-metre final.

Garapick, back in top form after a decline that followed her sudden rise to prominence as a 13-year-old prodigy in 1974, nearly had the silver but Birgit Treiber of East Germany caught her with about 20 metres to go.

Wendy Hogg of Vancouver was a close fourth, one place better than her finish in the 1972 Olympics, and Cheryl Gibson of Edmonton was fifth.

The winning time of one minute 1.83 seconds was .32 seconds slower than Richter's world record. Garapick's time was 1:03.71. She had clocked 1:03.28 in a heat Tuesday. The times for Hogg and Gibson were 1:03.93 and 1:05.16.

The East German girls' winning streak ended abruptly as Marina Koshevaia led two Russian team-mates to a medal sweep in the women's 200-metre breaststroke in the world-record time of 2:33.35.

Marina Jurchenia was second in 2:36.08 and Liubov Rusanova took the bronze in 2:36.22. Karla Linke of East Germany, whose world mark of 2:34.99 had stood since 1974, was fifth behind team-mate Hannelore Anke.

No U.S. swimmer qualified for either women's final on the program.

The U.S. men, however, swept the medals in the 100-metre butterfly and chopped more than seven seconds off the world record in the men's 4x200-metres freestyle relay. The foursome of Mike Bruner, Bruce Furniss, John Naber and Jim Montgomery established the world mark at 7:23.22 in the final.

Canada, said to be a medal threat in the relay, was disqualified when 18-year-old Steve Pickell of Vancouver left the starting blocks early at the start of the third leg in his heat.

Matt Vogel won the butterfly in 54.35, failing to match Mark Spitz's Munich mark of 54.28. Vancouver-born Clay Evans, who now lives in California, claimed sixth place for Canada in 55.81.

Hans Adlboch of Montreal placed 14th and Kurt Mitchell of Calgary was 16th among the 55 competitors in the smallbore rifle event. The top Canadian was 42nd in 1972.

EVER THE LADY, Great Britain's Princess Anne arranges her hair Wednesday while watching a workout of the British Olympic horse riding team. (CP Wirephoto).

Games Debut For Princess

BROMONT, Que. (AP) — Princess Anne was scheduled to make her Olympic debut today, riding Goodwill in the dressage segment of the three-day event, the first of the equestrian contests in this 21st Olympiad.

The Princess and 47 other riders spent Wednesday inspecting the difficult trails and obtacles they will encounter Saturday in the most dangerous of Olympic events, the endurance test.

The riders got off the army trucks and examined the obstacles on the cross-country section of the four-part endurance test.

They included:

—a plunge down a thirty-foot precipice with a creek at the bottom and a four-foot hurdle in the middle of the creek,

—a table in the woods with a canopy over the top, a factor that could spook some horses, and —a jump over stacked poles into knee deep water and then an added jump from and back into the water over a duck hide.

Capt. Mark Phillips, Princess Anne's husband and a reserve rider, huddled with his wife as they mapped strategy as to how she could best manoeuvre the powerful Goodwill over the course.

Preceding the cross-country section, there are two road and track tests and a steeplechase in the one day designed to test endurance and courage.

The dressage, in which each rider has 10 minutes to put his horse through precise manoeuvres, was to take two days because of the number of riders entered. This dressage is not at the level of grand prix dressage, but is designed mainly to test the rapport and obedience of a spirited and strong horse that has been primed with a tough cross country challenge.

For the first time in Olympic history, two of the outriders are women —one a Hollywood stunt woman as well as a Canadian breeder of thoroughbreds and hunters, and the other a master of foxhounds as well as a nurse. Mary Lou Irwin, the stunt rider, and Carol Rhoades are both from London, Ont. Rhoades is the master of foxhounds at the Bethany Hills Hunt Club.

Tiger-Cats' Fans Asking Questions

HAMILTON (CP) — Sophmore quarterback Tom Clements picked apart a porous Hamilton Tiger-Cats defence Wednesday night and did nothing to dispel suggestions that the Steel City club may find itself battling once again this season to escape the Eastern Football Conference cellar.

Clements completed 23 of 29 passes to lead Ottawa Rough Riders to a 42-16 Canadian Football League win over the Ticats in the season opener for both clubs and send the 21,269 fans at Ivor Wynne Stadium home wondering if the 19 new faces in the Hamilton lineup will prevent a repeat of last season.

It was only a remarkable win over Toronto Argonauts in the final game of the regular season last year which allowed the Ticats to gain the final playoff berth.

Newly acquired quarterback Jimmy Jones suffered stretched knee ligaments in the first quarter and was finally taken out late in the second quarter. He will be out of the lineup for about two weeks.

By the time Jones left the contest, Art Green—with two touchdowns—had led the Riders to a 35-1 lead, and it was Jones's backup, Randy Mattingly, who finally provided what touch of repectability the Tiger-Cats did show.

Mattingly completed 14 of 22 passes for 142 yards.

Rocks Clinch First

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Last week, when the Shamrocks cinched first place in the Western Lacrosse Association, they celebrated with beer.

Last night, when first place became official, the toast was made in champagne. It tasted good. It had been a long time without the bubbly.

The last time the Irish won the league championship was in 1957, 19 years ago. That was the year they won their second Mann Cup championship. Naturally, the hope is that history will repeat.

The title actually came before the game when league commissioner Roy Burton announced the league's tie-break system; and the Irish, by virtue of having beaten New Westminster Salmonbellies, four games to one with one game tied, would have been declared champs even if they had ended in a tie with the Bellies.

As it was, the Rocks made it certain with an easy 17-10 victory over Nanaimo at Memorial Arena. Nanaimo, for its part, is now in danger of being overtaken by Coquitlam Adanacs in the battle for the fourth and final playoff position.

In the playoffs, the Rocks will meet the third-place finisher in a best-of-seven series beginning here Aug. 4. Second and third-place teams will meet in a similar seven-game series with the winners to meet over seven games in the final.

Shamrocks have two games remaining, both against Burrards, both here, Saturday night and next Wednesday, and Burrards must win if they hope to finish second.

Dan Green led the Shamrocks Wednesday. He had two goals and five assists. Norm Baker, Ranjit Dillon, Charn Dhillon, Chris Hall, Ivan Thompson and Frank Alexander, Joe McCrea and Jerry Kustaski. Bob Wasson had three goals for the Timbermen who trailed 5-3 in the first period and 14-4 in the second.

Except for the final two minutes when the Timbermen scored three goals, it was a virtual rout.

Oh yes, and to make it really official, Shamrock's rookie coach, Nirmal Dillon, who with defenceman Tom Black has been with the Rocks the longest of any players (1964), was tossed into the shower. Fully clothed—what else?

The veteran (and rookie) didn't mind a bit.

Backup Man Packs It Up

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Jets backup quarterback Al Woodall, a veteran of seven National Football League seasons, has announced his retirement from the sport. Woodall, 30, was released by the Jets at the beginning of this year's training camp. He said both the Pittsburgh Steelers and the San Francisco 49ers had expressed interest in him, but added:

"Right now I plan on not playing football. I'm fed up with it."

Woodall, a second-round draft pick from Duke in 1969, served as Joe Namath's backup throughout his pro career.

Cosmos Move To Ruth Final

Gordon Head Cosmopolitans advanced to the final of the Greater Victoria Babe Ruth (14 and 15-year-old) baseball championship tournament by tripping Layritz 8-3 Wednesday night at Bullen Park.

Mark Stodel pitched a four hitter and Ed Geric came up with two hits and scored two runs as Cosmos came through the losers' bracket of the five-team, double-loss elimination tourney.

It was the fifth game in as many days for Cosmos, who will meet unbeaten Saanich in the final at 6:15 tonight.

Saanich can take the title with a third straight victory but if Comos win, another game will be played Friday.

Mark Stodel and John Kerr; Ron Burton and Bill Haymen. Home run: Layritz—Bill Sommerville.

Bakers Apply Stranglehold On First Place

COQUITLAM — Coming up with a well-balanced scoring effort, Victoria McDonalds virtually clinched first place in the Western Canada Junior Lacrosse League by tripping Coquitlam J-Hawks 15-8 Wednesday night before about 500 fans in Coquitlam Arena.

The win moved Bakers eight points ahead of Burnaby Cablevision, which has six games remaining in the regular schedule to Victoria's four.

Gerry Cadwallader, Scott Browning, Jim Boyd, Ken King and league-leading marksman Kevin Alexander each came up with two goals for Bakers and singles were contributed by Dave Lowden, Steve Hepburn, Bob Cool, Mike Bryson and John Entzminger.

Victoria manager Bob Reid said the strain of playing three games in four nights showed but Al Radley kept the pressure off his clubmates with an outstanding effort in goal.

Radley made 41 saves overall, including 18 in the second period.

McDonalds, who led by period scores of 4-1 and 7-3, peppered Coquitlam netminder Seth Flannery with 58 shots but couldn't come up with an effective power play.

Mike Reelie, Butch Stewart and Wayne MacAuley scored twice each for J-Hawks while single tallies were added by Dan Tickner and Rick McLeod.

Drinkwater evened his season record at 4-4 by allowing no bases on balls. Barry Moen and Ron Holmes were the only Farmer baserunners.

Russ Holmes led Gorge at the plate with three hits to drive in three runs. His double in the third inning broke a scoreless deadlock.

McDermid Clout Sidelines Lions

Alan McDermid bashed out a two-run homer Wednesday night to help Hampton oust defending-champion Esquimalt Lions 4-3 and gain a berth in the final of the double-loss elimination Greater Victoria Little League championship tournament at Hampton Park.

McDermid's homer came with none out in the third inning and staked Hampton a 4-1 lead. Stu Hobden led off the frame with a single.

Winning-pitcher Kevin Davenport stifled an Esquimalt rally in the fourth inning with a ground out and a strike out to end the frame.

Hampton, celebrating its 20th anniversary, meets unbeaten Triangle in the final at 6:30 tonight. A win by Hampton would force an extra game Friday.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Centre Clyde Best scored two goals to lead Tampa Bay Rowdies to a 2-1 overtime victory over Philadelphia Atoms in the only North American Soccer League game Wednesday night.

Philadelphia led at halftime 1-0 after forward Pedro Herrada scored unassisted at 13:54 from six yards out.

Canadian Marksmen Cool Off

BISLEY, England (CP) — After a week of remarkable success, Canada had an off day at the National Rifle Association meeting here, finishing third in the Empire Match and near last in the inter-services target rifle event. Australia won the Empire Match with 1909 out of a possible 2000 points for teams of 10 firing at 300, 600, 900 and 1000 yards. Britain scored 1907 and Canada 1897. A team of young British cadets humiliated all the regular service teams to win the services match with 1136 out of a possible 1200. The Canadian cadets placed fifth in the nine-team event with 1085 points. The Canadian Forces were eighth at 1059.

CANADIAN MAKES FINAL

MONTREAL (CP) — Gord Singleton, a 19-year-old cyclist from Niagara Falls, Ont., counted an Olympic first for Canada when he advanced Wednesday to the second round in sprint competition.

Singleton defeated Dimo Angelov of Bulgaria in the preliminary heat of the 1,000-metre sprint, the first time a Canadian has reached the top 16.

Musical Detective Story On Stage in September

A sequel to LaBonza Unchained, which premiered at McPherson Playhouse two years ago, will be launched at the same theatre in September.

LaBonza Meets Bill Bennett is called "a musical detective story."

The same team that authored the first LaBonza admits responsibility for the sequel.

Charles Barber who calls himself "a second-rate pianist and politician perhaps best known as the laughing-stock of the Victoria Music Festival" has written the music and collaborated with Greg Welsh—"a failed novelist of minor reputation"—in the lyrics for the 14 songs. Welsh has also written the book.

They say the show will be given as a benefit for the Belfry Cultural Centre on Gladstone. It will be directed by Colin and Liz Gorrie, the team responsible for the current production of Cabaret.

Auditions will be held Sunday from 1-4 p.m. at the Belfry, Gladstone at Fernwood. Call Shipley at 385-6815 for an appointment. Thirty actors, singers and dancers are needed for the show which will run Sept. 23-26.

China Denies Second Games Plan

MONTREAL (CP) — The president of the Peking-based All-China Sports Federation Tuesday denied reports that his government was attempting for set up a parallel Olympic games for 1980.

Rumors have been circulating here for several days that China was investigating how many of the African countries boycotting the current Games would be interested in participating in a breakaway Olympics.

An ABC television correspondent based in Hong Kong also reported that Peking was organizing a parallel Games, to coincide with the Moscow event.

But All-China Sports Federation president Chao Cheng-Hung said through an interpreter the reports were "completely untrue."

China is still seeking admission to the Olympic movement, and the door will be opened to it if the International Olympic Committee carries out a threat to expel Taiwan because of its insistence on marching under the banner of the Republic of China.

Killer Gets Life, Life, Life, Life, Life . . .

OXFORD, England — Donald Neilson, known as Britain's "Black Panther" slayer, was denounced in court Wednesday as a killer without mercy and sentenced to five concurrent life terms in prison. "The enormity of the crimes . . . puts you in a class above almost all convicted murderers in recent years," Judge William Mars-Jones told the convicted killer of teen-age heiress Lesley Whittle and three postmasters. Nelson, 39-year-old carpenter, was given a life sentence for each of the four murders and the fifth for gravely wounding one of the postmasters' wives. He was labelled the Black Panther becuse of statements by witnesses that he wore black clothing when he committed the crimes.

MOSCOW — Cosmanauts Boris Volynov and Vitaly Zholobov were in good condition Wednesday after 15 days in orbit in the Soviet space laboratory Salyut 5, Tass news agency reported.

LEWISBURG, Tenn.—When three policemen advertised in the local newspaper for the owner of a tub of marijuana plants, they never expected to find an owner. But they did. Leroy Chilton, 26, came to claim the plants and was arrested on a charge of manufacturing marijuana. The officers found the plants last week and stored them at the jail. As a joke, they decided to print a picture of the marijuana in the Lewisburg Tribune with the caption: "Have you lost a tub of marijuana? If you have, you may claim it at the Lewisburg police department." Chilton appeared asked for the plants.

NASHVILLE — Country entertainer Johnny Paycheck says he can pay off $341,149.01 in secured debts but will be unable to come up with the $121,749.95 needed to satisfy unsecured creditors. Paycheck testified at a hearing on his bankruptcy petition that his gross income last year was $175,000, but that he lost $40,000 to $50,000 in gambling debts and had an actual net income of only $15,000.

SANTA ANA, Calif. — Richard Nixon gets at least one break because of Watergate—the taxes on his $6 million San Clemente estate will barely rise at all while his neighbors pay sizable increases. Because of the furor over Nixon's finances and taxes, the estate already was scrutinized and taxed to the limit, said the Orange County assessor's office, explaining why the assessed value of Nixon's property rose only one per cent while others in the area averaged 23 per cent.

SEATTLE — The solemn came from California, Florida, Canada and Hong Kong to memorialize the death of the martial art movie star who was their idol. The occasion was the third anniversary of the death of Bruce Lee, who lived for a time in Seattle, died at 32 in Hong Kong, and is buried in Lake View cemetery overlooking the city. Daniel Dupont, 21, flew from Quebec City to join about 50 others who made their pilgrimage to Lee's grave. He ticks them off on his fingers in hesitant English. "Utah, California, Seattle, Arizona, Florida, Japan . . . and, uh, Oregon. And there were the two Chinese men who flew from Hong Kong. They come and bring those flowers there that say, 'In Loving Memory,' and they take some pictures and poof they are gone."

MANILA — A military court Wednesday ordered an unprecedented sentence of death by hanging for a former professional boxer convicted of raping, robbing and killing a 12-year-old girl who sold eggs in a street market. Col. Dominador de la Cruz, a member of the military court formed under martial law, said the hanging sentence was justified because the murder was "heninous, brutal and atrocious." Reynaldo Patano, 30, was convicted of murdering Mary Ann Mastigue June 8, 1975. The girl, who made her living by selling duck eggs, was on her way home at the time. She was assaulted, beaten and strangled and robbed of a day's earnings of $1.50. Patanao was arrested several days after the child's battered body was found in a lumberyard.

Booze, Sex Parties For Jail Inmates

LITTLE ROCK — A witness testified Wednesday that liquor and sex parties were common in the jailhouse of Sheriff Donald Brummett, who along with deputy Tommy Wilson is charged with raping and sexually molesting several female prisoners. Betty Sue Taylor, who had been held in the Lonoke County jail before her trial and sentencing on an armed robbery charge, testified she had had sex with [redacted] while being held there. "I saw him every night I was there," Mrs. Taylor said. "We'd have sex. I also had all the booze I wanted, beer, whisky, vodka. How much I couldn't tell you, but there was plenty. It was brought to get drunk on and I stayed that way if I could." Mrs. Taylor also testified that they cleaned up the jail neatly each morning, "making sure all the cans and bottles were put in sacks."

WHY DENTISTS PUT PRETZELS ON SNACK LIST

Nutrition Buyline

QUESTION:

After a recent examination, my son's dentist gave him a list of suitable between meal snacks. Most of the foods on the list are nutritious but why were such foods as potato chips, cheese puffs, pretzels and popcorn included?

ANSWER:

Your dentist is advising between meal snacks with a low sugar content. Sweet foods, particularly those which are sticky and adhere to the teeth are not suitable as snack foods. Acids formed following the presence of sugar in the mouth are the main cause of tooth decay. A sweet taken between meals promotes an acid attack which is stronger and lasts longer than if taken with a meal.

Foods like potato chips and pretzels are low in sugar but are also low in nutrients. It would be wiser to choose foods which are both good dental and nutritional snacks. This includes food such as fresh fruits and vegetables, plain muffins, peanuts, sunflower seeds, plain yogurt and cheese.

QUESTION:

I have always enjoyed drinking milk but now that I am retired and on a fixed income, I find it difficult to keep within my food budget. Could I cut down on my diary products?

ANSWER:

No! It would not be wise for you to reduce your consumption of dairy products although many elderly people do believe that they no longer need to drink milk once they have stopped growing. The truth is that every mature adult still requires a daily minimum of 2 servings of milk or milk products daily. Examples of 1 serving are: 8 ounces of fluid milk (whole, 2% or skim), 8 ounces of cottage cheese or yogurt, 1 ounce of firm cheese and 8 ounces of cream soup.

To save money use skim milk powder or 2% milk which offer the same protein, riboflavin and calcium content as whole milk. Compare the price per pound of cheddar cheese and buy the least expensive as they all contain the same nutritive value.

FREE For The Asking

By HARRIET HART

With continuously rising food prices, every homemaker is looking for a way to save money on her grocery bill. Bulk purchase of household products could be one way out.

The six-page folder About Freezers and Food urges those who are considering joining a freezer-food plan to first evaluate their family's needs. A freezer-food plan usually provides a saving only after a period of years. You won't be able to save hundreds of dollars in a few months, and you will only save if you can use all the items provided under the plan.

The folder points out that some freezer-food plans require a membership fee. Find out what service you will get for this fee.

Also find out what guarantee you have regarding the quality of meat you will receive. Check out if there are extra charges for freezing, cutting, wrapping and delivery. Ask for the firm's current price list so that you can make comparisons. Contact your local Better Business Bureau to see how long the company has been in business.

Enclose a long (No. 10) self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request for the folder and send it to: Better Business Bureau of Canada, 76 St. Clair Avenue W., Toronto, Ontario M4V 1N2.

Please allow at least 2-3 weeks for delivery.

Some Vinaigrette Recipes (And Forgive Us Our Sins)

N.Y. Times

In a strictly technical or classic sense, the word "vinaigrette" is one of the most abused in the entire gastronomic lexicon. What is commonly referred to in this country as a vinaigrette sauce — a combination of three parts oil to one part vinegar plus salt and pepper to taste — is quite simply known in France as a sauce salade. A classic vinaigrette (also called ravigote) consists of oil and vinegar plus capers, chopped herbs such as parsley, tarragon, chives and chervil, a touch of onion and salt and pepper. On this page, we ask Auguste Escoffier to forgive us our sins, for we employ the word "vinaigrette" loosely and as a matter of convenience. In any event, here are a few favorite vinaigrette recipes, some of which even call for lemon juice in lieu of vinegar.

Belgian endive and fennel vinaigrette

6 heads Belgian endive, approximately
1 fresh fennel bulb
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon imported mustard, preferably Dijon or Dusseldorf
6 tablespoons olive oil
Salt and freshly ground pepper.

1. Trim off the bottoms of the endive. Cut the endive into one-inch lengths or cut it lengthwise into thin shreds. Drop the pieces into cold water. This will keep them from turning dark. Drain and spin dry or pat dry. Put in a plastic bag and chill.

2. Trim the fennel and slice it thinly. Cut the slices into fine pieces. Rinse, drain and spin or pat dry. Chill.

3. Combine the fennel and endive in a chilled mixing bowl. Blend the remaining ingredients and pour the mixture over all. Add more lemon juice or oil to taste. Toss and serve on chilled salad plates.

Yield: Four to six servings.

Vegetable salad Italian-style

12 shrimp, cooked, shelled and deveined
1 small cauliflower
1 or 2 ribs celery
¼ pound green beans, as green, young and tender as possible
12 pitted or stuffed green or black imported olives
12 anchovy fillets, split in half widthwise
6 thin onion slices, preferably red onion
Salt and freshly ground black pepper
Sauce vinaigrette (see recipe)

1. Prepare the shrimp and set aside.

2. Cut off the "flowers" from about one-quarter of the cauliflower. The weight of the flowers should be about one-quarter pound. Cut the flowers into bite-size pieces. There should be about two cups. Set aside.

3. Cut the celery ribs widthwise into half-inch, bite-size pieces. Set aside.

4. Neatly trim the green beans and cut them into one-inch lengths. Set aside.

5. Preferably, the vegetables should be steamed in a vegetable steamer. However cooked, they must not be overcooked. They must remain crisp-tender. Steam the cauliflower pieces about four or five minutes. Drain quickly under cold water to chill. Steam the celery about three to four minutes. Drain and chill. Steam the green beans five to eight minutes. Drain and chill. Drain all the vegetables well.

6. Place the vegetables in a bowl and add the olives, anchovies, shrimp and onion rings and sprinkle with salt pepper to taste. Pour the vinaigrette sauce over all and toss. Serve with buttered toast.

Yield: Six servings.

VINAIGRETTE SAUCE

2 tblsp. lemon juice
6 tblsp. olive oil
1 tblsp. imported mustard, preferably Dijon or Dusseldorf
Salt and freshly ground pepper
1 clove garlic, finely minced

Combine all the ingredients in a small jar and seal with a lid. Shkae well and chill. Shake before using.

Yield: about one-half cup.

MUSSELS VINAIGRETTE

5 lbs. clean, well-scrubbed mussels, the smaller the better
½ cup white vinegar
2 sprigs fresh thyme or ½ tsp. dried
1 bay leaf
1½ cups chopped red onion
½ cup chopped parsley
¾ cup peanut, vegetable or corn oil

1. Place the mussels in a kettle and add one-quarter cup vinegar, the thyme and the bay leaf. Cover and steam until the mussels open, five to 10 minutes. Drain.

2. Empty the warm mussels into a large serving dish or mixing bowl. Toss with remaining ingredients, including the remaining one-quarter cup vinegar.

Yield: twelve or more servings.

HEARTS OF PALM WITH CAPERS VINAIGRETTE

1 tsp. imported mustard, preferably Dijon or Dusseldorf
Salt and freshly ground pepper
2 tblsp. red-wine vinegar
6 to 7 tblsp. olive oil
1 tsp. finely chopped garlic
1 tsp. drained capers
1 14-oz. can hearts of palm, chilled
8 flat anchovy fillets

1. Combine the mustard, salt and pepper to taste and the vinegar in a mixing bowl. Using a wire whisk, gradually add the oil, beating vigorously. Add the garlic and capers.

2. Drain the hearts of palm and cut each heart lengthwise in half. Arrange the hearts of palm neatly on four chilled plates. Garnish each serving with two flat anchovy fillets. Stir the sauce and ladle it over.

Yield: four servings.

Are You from There? Saskatoon

elizabeth forbes

Are You From There? A delightful little booklet came to my desk the other day. One that I'm sure you will be of interest to former residents of Saskatchewan and especially those from the vicinity of Saskatoon.

It's titled Some Outstanding Women — They Made Saskatoon a Better Community.

There's a clear yellow cover with a sampler-type design of women, in warm brown tones. Size of the booklet is approximately 8½ by 5¼ and it contains 60 well-printed pages.

Recorded on those pages are the stories of some 50 women who have made outstanding contributions to the community life of Saskatoon, in public affairs, politics, the arts, education, sports and public welfare.

The booklet was planned as an International Women's Year project of the Saskatoon Business and Professional Women's Club. It was funded by the IWY Saskatchewan Grant Program for 1975.

Names of women for presentation in the booklet were sought through advertisements in local newspapers and through letters sent to many organizations.

The selection committee included four members of the BPW Club and two nonmembers who had lived in Saskatoon for many years and therefore had a wide knowledge of the area.

Editor was Marian Younger and the stories and biographies were compiled by Zoe Dallas, a well-known newspaper woman.

In selecting the names, emphasis was placed on voluntary work and effort.

Some of the women made their contributions in the early years of the city, others are active today.

All have one thing in common — they are women who through the years, had the foresight to see the needs of the community and because they were aware of those needs, gave their time and talents, and the community reaped the benefit.

"They provided the initiative," Marian Younger says in a brief preface.

Thumbing quickly through the 60 pages I find Bessie Anderson, who was vitally interested in the mentally ill and gave years of service in that field; Isabel Atkinson, one time national president of Consumers Association of Canada, and Helen Williams, whose work with the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) has been outstanding.

Mrs. A. M. (Grace) Blue, who pioneered the Home and School movement in Saskatchewan; Muriel Clancy, head of the children's department of the Public Library for more than 30 years and Sally Chubb, local historian and expert on early Saskatoon.

Sylvia Fedoruk, recognized across Canada and abroad as an outstanding physicist; Helen Hnatyshyn who has devoted many years to the Council of Women at local, provincial and national levels, and Helen Kudryk, one of four women who originally came together to form the Unemployment Citizens Welfare Improvement Council.

There are many more women whose names and accomplishments, I'm sure will be familiar to anyone who has lived in or near Saskatoon or in the province of Saskatchewan.

The booklet is available by writing to Mrs. Younger, 2217 Ewart Avenue, Saskatoon, Sask., S7J 1Y1. The cost, including postage, is $1.25.

Women of B.C. — While I'm on the subject I'd like to tell you about another book that has only recently come to my desk — although published in 1975, International Women's Year.

Remember the title — Women of British Columbia; the author, Jan Gould; the price — $14.95. I'm sure you will find it in most of our book stores.

It's a hard-cover publication titled Women of British Columbia, written by Jan Gould.

The author, who has lived and travelled in many parts of this province, tells her story with the aid of photographs, diaries, letters and through personal interviews.

She writes of first ladies, women missionaries and loggers, homesteaders and tea sippers, nurses and prostitutes. She tells of rural teaching, isolation and loneliness, tragedy and triumph from the beginning of British Columbia's history up to the present time.

This is a book that once opened will not be put aside until the last page is reached.

It is sensitively written and well documented. Within its covers you will find women of yesterday and some of today — all of whom have played a part or are now playing a part in the life of this province.

A Correction — Somewhere between my typewriter and the printed version of a column I wrote on Banks Making It Better For Women in this newspaper on Saturday, July 10, the Gremlins that from time to time, plague editors, reporters and columnists, took over.

Result? Mrs. Jean Robson, whom I named as the only woman bank manager in Victoria's downtown area, was placed in the Bank of Commerce instead of the Bank of Nova Scotia at the corner of Douglas and Courtney Streets.

This I very much regret and my sincere apologies go to Mrs. Robson and through her to the Bank of Nova Scotia.

TOO MUCH STEAK?

OTTAWA (CP) — Lavish servings of steak at a barbecue for an international home economics conference here this week raised eyebrows among Third World delegates.

"At a time when experts are saying the North American diet, which gets its protein from grain-fed animals, is taking food out of the mouths of developing nations, I think we could have set a better example," said one woman who asked not to be identified.

"The food portions were all far too large," added another woman. "A lot of food was wasted."

A Canadian organizer of the conference said the barbecue menu was planned to give the foreign visitors a taste of Canadian cuisine.

More than 1,000 home economists from 53 countries are attending the 13th congress of the Canadian Federation of Home Economists which ends Friday.

½ cup cold water
toasted, sliced almonds

Place chicken pieces, boned side up on cutting board. Working from centre out, pound chicken lightly with wooden mallet or edge of saucer to make cutlets about ¼-inch thick. Do not pierce skin. Sprinkle with salt. Place 1 ham slice and 1 cheese stick on each cutlet. Tuck in sides of each; roll up in jelly-roll fashion. Skewer or tie securely. Dust rolls with ¼ cup flour. In skillet, brown rolled cutlets in 2 tbsp. butter.

Remove chicken to 11x7x1½-inch baking dish. In small saucepan, gently saute mushrooms in 1 tbsp. butter until tender but not browned. Remove from heat; set aside. In skillet, combine ½ cup water, gravy base, sauteed mushrooms, and wine. Heat, stirring in any crusty bits from skillet. Pour mushroom-wine mixture over chicken in baking dish. Cover, bake in 350 degree F. oven for 1 to 1¼ hours, or until tender.

Transfer chicken to warmed serving platter. Carefully remove skewers or string. Blend 2 tbsp. flour with ½ cup cold water. Add to pan juices. Cook; stirring until thickened. Pour small amount of gravy over chicken; garnish with toasted, sliced almonds. Pass remaining gravy. Makes six servings.

JP Wasn't Laughing

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A justice of the peace is sueing the telephone company for $325,000 because his yellow pages listing improperly appeared under the "junk dealers" classification.

Judge Charles F. Gallo of Chalmette, La., said he advertised so couples wanting to get married could make wedding plans by phone. He said the yellow pages error cost him $25,000, caused embarrassment, resulted in loss of reputation and made him the target of prank calls and insults.

"On numerous occasions, petitioner was insulted by the callers and called vulgar names when he insisted that he was not in the junk business," the suit said.

Nutrient Requirements Rise During Pregnancy

By DR. JEAN MAYER

Q. My daughter is expecting her first baby, and I'm somewhat concerned about her eating habits. Can you give us some advice about what she should eat?

A. Simply stated, a good diet for a woman who is pregnant is nothing more than a well-balanced diet for anyone — just a little more of it! The requirements, however, for some nutrients are increased more than for others. For example, protein is increased by 30 grams, or about 55 per cent; ascorbic acid by one-third; calcium and phosphorus by 50 per cent; and the allowance for folic acid, a B vitamin necessary for the proper maturation of red blood cells, is doubled. (Incidentally, the need for iron is so great during pregnancy and the child-bearing years that it cannot be met by ordinary diet; therefore, a supplement is generally advised.)

Yet all of these extra nutrients should come from eating only 300 more calories a day. And that requires some careful planning.

Let's look more closely at where these additional nutrients are to come from.

First, a good prenatal diet should include 3 to 4 cups of milk or yougurt, with an ounce of hard cheese replacing a cup of milk if you wish. It should also include eggs frequently and two servings of meat, fish or poultry. Nonmeat alternatives, such as dried peas or peanut butter, can be used as substitutes, particularly if some animal protein is taken at the same time. And it should include four large servings of fruits and vegetables. One of these should be a dark green, leafy vegetable rich in both Vitamin A and folic acid, and one should be a fruit or vegetable rich in ascorbic acid such as citrus fruit, green pepper, melon, tomatoes or broccoli. Finally, the diet should include at least four servings of breads and cereals, preferably whole grain, which provide more of the trace elements as well as bulk.

How well does your daughter's diet compare? It might be a good idea for her to keep a record for a few days and compare it to the diet I've just outlined. Then she can focus on patching up the nutritional loopholes.

Q. My two-year-old son is very fond of soups. Can you tell me about the protein content of the various canned soups?

A. It is probably safe to say that nowhere in the supermarket is there greater choice than in the soup section. Some of these choices are quite good; others contain little except calories. Fortunately, the mystery of what's in a can of soup will become public knowledge as soon as manufacturers adopt nutrition labelling and begin printing the nutrient analysis right on the can. Some of these newly labelled cans are already available. And it is also possible to get this information by writing to the large soup manufacturers.

Until the labelling is more widespread, here are some general guidelines to help you select the best soups for your son. As you might expect, the various cream soups are among the best bets — that is, if you reconstitute them with milk, not water. A cup of one of these soups will, in general, provide about 7 grams of protein, or the equivalent of one ounce of meat.

Bean and pea soups are also high in protein. Remember, however, that beans and peas contain vegetable protein; in order to get the maximum benefit from them, it's important to serve some source of complete protein, such as a glass of milk or wedge of cheese at the same meal.

At the lower end of the totem pole are soups such as beef or chicken noodle, chicken rice and vegetarian vegetable soup. These soups provide substantially less protein, much of which is of poor quality.

Q. I am planning to freeze some of the vegetables from my garden this summer. My cookbook says to clean and cut the vegerables and then scald and chill them before freezing. A friend of mine says that this causes vitamin loss and that it's better to simply clean, cut and package vegetables right from the garden. Which is correct?

A. Stick with your cookbook. Vegetables must be scalded in order to inactivate enzymes that can otherwise cause undesirable changes in texture, color, and flavor. In addition, the scalding process promotes further cleansing (and destroys considerable numbers of microorganisms). And from a practical point of view, it shrinks and softens the vegetables, conserving space and making them easier to package.

In order to minimize losses of water-soluble nutrients such as Vitamin C, the B vitamins and certain minerals, it is important to complete the scalding process quickly and then chill the vegetables as rapidly as possible, preferable in ice water. This procedure also prevents spoilage that occurs if each particle is not thoroughly chilled before freezing.

Creamed Mackerel Drew Some Nods

Mary Moore

One 7¾-ounce can of mackerel cost 31c. That works out to less than 65c per pound for an excellent protein. In addition mackerel is high in calcium, phosphorous and iron content.

So with this economical can of fish in hand I went to work.

I made a salad for lunch and from another can I made creamed mackerel on toasted English buns for dinner. All of my tasters nodded their approval. Pete wondered if this little canned fish could be a good substitute for canned salmon. I said "certainly".

ATLANTIC MACKEREL SALAD

1 7¾-oz. can mackerel (well drained)
1 tbsp. lemon juice
2 c. finely shredded new cabbage
¼ c. chopped parsley
¼ c. chopped chives
¼ c. chopped green pepper
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
3 or 4 tbsp. mayonnaise or salad dressing
½ tsp. chili powder (optional lettucee

Drain mackerel well. In a bowl sprinkle it with the lemon juice. Chill.

At mealtime add the cabbage, parsley, chives, green pepper, sliced hard-cooked eggs, mayonnaise or salad dressing and chili powder (if used). Gently toss to blend being careful not to break hard-cooked egg slices any more than necessary. Line a shallow salad bowl with crisp lettuce leaves and add mackerel salad. Garnish all around the edge with tomato wedges. Top with a little additional mayonnaise at centre and sprinkle that with paprika.

CREAMED MACKEREL
(serves 4)

1 7¾-oz. can mackerel
1 tsp. lemon juice
3 tbsp. butter or margarine
3 tbsp. flour
¼ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. M.S.G. (accent)
milk (see amount below)
1 tbsp. chopped parsley or parsley flakes or 2 tbsp. cooked green peas or fresh green pepper or 1 tbsp. chopped sweet pickle

Drain and measure liquid from can of mackerel. Make it up to 1½ cups by adding milk to it. Flake the mackerel coarsely and sprinkle the lemon juice over it.

Make sauce by melting the butter or margarine, stirring in the flour, salt and M.S.G. and parsley (or other chosen greens). Stir in milk-mackerel liquid until thick. Add flaked mackerel and stir until well heated through. Serve on toast triangles or puff pastry shells or toasted English bun halves.

Facelift For Many Food Labels

As you travel down grocery aisles, have you noticed any difference lately ... aside from new products and price changes? Well, many packaged food labels have received a facelift — a new and probably unfamiliar Canadian Grocery Product Code.

The code is a ten digit numbering system for identifying items sold by grocery stores. The typical symbol is a series of lines of different width with visible numbers at the bottom of the symbol. The first five digits in the code represent the manufacturer, and the second five digits identify the product.

Retailers developed the code to bring supermarket selling into the computer age. This coding system is capable of individually identifying one trillion supermarket items. No two products should ever have the same symbol.

Stores using the system have electronic cash registers. When you reach the checkout counter, the clerk slides the coded items over a scanning device. In a fraction of a second, a message is sent to the store's minicomputer file. Here information is stored on the current product price, tax and any other pertinent data, such as special offers and customer accounts.

As each purchase is made, the information is flashed on a screen mounted at the checkout counter. Simultaneously, the price and product description are printed on the receipt.

The idea behind this new marketing technique is to save time and money for both the store and the consumer. Retailers will have an accurate inventory control, and customers will receive a more detailed sales slip for better comparison shopping.

One Hundred Million Women Learning to Shun Courtesies

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Prefers Skirts," who wants to determine dress for all the women in the world:

Thanks to you and your kind, Buddy, 100 million women are learning the following things: Any woman not physically handicapped is strong enough to open a door and move a chair. Waitresses should be paid a living wage by their employers and not have to depend on the generosity of the customer as if waitresses were performing dogs rewarded with bits of food.

We are also learning that all the "gentlemanly courtesies" you extend (when you are in the mood) are not worth a 69 per cent pay differential, and that when we earn our own money with our own labor, we can pay our own bills and maintain our self-respect as adult human beings (commonly known as "feeling like a man").

And meditate on this for a little while, pal: One hundred million women get up and dressed every single day without giving one second's thought to how you feel about their outfits.

Feel free, Abby, to use my name. — SHARON S. MILLER.

DEAR ABBY: "Prefers Skirts" who refuses to tip a waitress in trousers has got to be some kind of nut.

In the first place, the boss decides what the employees shall wear.

I'm a 26-year-old mother of two who applied for a job as a cocktail waitress in a supper club.

The hours were fine and so was the pay, but when I saw the costume I had to wear, I told the boss I was applying for a job as a cocktail waitress — not a striptease dancer. Needless to say, I didn't take that job.

I'm not putting down waitresses who work in such costumes. If they're hungry enough, they'll wear them. Thank heavens, I wasn't. — MODEST

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those lucky women who has always looked at least ten years younger than my age. Consequently, when I got into my 40's I started lying about my age.

Not only did I lie to my friends about my age, I also lied to my doctor, which has been costing me money.

You see, I recently went into a hospital and didn't want to admit my real age, so I didn't use my Social Security Medicare card, and I had to pay for everything myself. (The same with my doctor bill.)

How can I overcome this feeling of embarrassment about my real age?—LOOKS YOUNG

DEAR LOOKS: Look at it this way: A person who looks younger than his age has something of which to be proud. So why not admit it!

CONFIDENTIAL TO M.M.: If you have used your husband's surname but wish to revert to your maiden name, regardless of your marital status, in the state of California it is NOT necessary to go to court.

indoor gardens

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Dear Lynn and Joel:

Can you help me! I've heard from many sources that Grape Ivy is quite hardy. I've really babied several plants which, when I first got them, were things of beauty, then, alas, they started shedding their leaves and even the new growth dried up. I talk to them and really cater to them but nothing seems to work. Thanks for your advice.—G.S.

Dear G.S.:

Grape Ivy, a member of the Cissus family, is really much easier to care for than the other ivies (California, English, Hahn's, and so on) which are members of the Hedera family. We don't know exactly what you're doing wrong, but if we tell you what to do right, maybe you can give the old Grape Ivy one more go.

Be sure your plant gets plenty of light — Grape Ivy will not do well in a low-light situation. Water it when the topsoil is dry, Pinch back new growth at the ends of the vines for at least the first three months you own the plant — that will help keep it full all around. Finally, feed it about once every two months during the growing season with a fish-based or organic food. Of course, it should be sprayed every day — and by all means, don't stop talking to it. All things being equal, if you start with a healthy Grape Ivy you'll be able to keep it thriving for many years.

Let Your Doctor Do the Prescribing

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

your health

Our family doctor refuses to prescribe antibiotics, even when we think we need it. Why shouldn't we have the benefit of these new wonder drugs? Why should he hold off in prescribing them?

Mr. J. T., Mich.

Dear Mr. T.:

On rereading your letter the key words are "even though we think we need it." There is a difference between the doctor's evaluation of that need and your own.

One of the most difficult problems that the physician faces is to resist the pressures made on him by patients who insist on specific drugs.

There is a great overuse, and even abuse, of the antibiotics. A number of dangers are the end results of such promiscuous use. Patients may be sensitized to antibiotics and develop allergic responses that may make further use impossible.

Some patients may, after awhile, fail to respond adequately to an antibiotic which previously may have been effective.

It is now suspected that germs, or bacteria, may be setting up their own defenses against antibiotics. It is well known that many of these bacteria have become resistant to the antibiotics that previously held them in check, or killed them.

The antibiotics are far too valuable to be wasted for routine illnesses where quick recovery can be predicted by the doctor.

All physicians have had the experience of being urged to prescribe an antibiotic or to give a 'shot" when their own judgment suggests the contrary.

Only the doctor can outweigh the advantages versus the disadvantages of the use of an antibiotic or any other drug.

You can be certain that your phusician is using talent and good judgment in limiting the prescription of antibiotics, and he is not "holding off" in prescribing them without a good reason.

New Directions For the Autumn

NEW YORK (NYT)—Women are used to following where Adolfo leads. A few years back, he beckoned with latter-day Chanel designs, and lo, the Chanel suit, knitted and lighter than the original, became the uniform of women who lunch.

So when his fans came back from their weekends in the Hamptons or on their terraces to see what he has in mind for them in the fall, they wore their knitted Adolfo suits, in white for the summer.

So where is Adolfo going?

Into the realm of fantasy, of course, the same path trod by Yves Saint Laurent with his glorified peasant look.

Striped silk shirts, blooming velvet skirts and flowered sashes are Adolfo's conceit for fall, when the social action moves off the patios and the terraces into the dining and drawing rooms.

Of course, the Chanelisms continue. This time the jackets tend to have side closings and handbags to match hanging from the familiar gold chains. The coats tend to have thick fringed borders around them.

One of the most luxurious suits is in white with white mink borders. It was modelled with a narrow white mink scarf and Barbara Walter's daughter, Jacqueline, who is 8, thought it was the best thing in the show.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal arose in a duplicate game, virtually every North-South pair arrived at a game contract via the bidding sequence described below. At every table the same opening lead was made. With one exception, each South declarer fulfilled his contract. The account which follows is what occurred at the one table where the three notrump contract was defeated.

♡ J 7 5
♢ K 7 3
♣ Q J 6 4

WEST
♠ Q J 4
♡ K 9 3
♢ 10 8 4 2

EAST
♠ K 10 8 7
♡ 10 8 6 4
♢ A 6 5

SOUTH
♠ A 5 3
♡ A Q 2
♢ Q J 9
♣ A K 9 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♢.

At all of the tables, the various West defenders opened the deuce of diamonds, and dummy's king was put up. With one exception, the king was captured by East's ace, and a diamond was returned, South's queen taking the trick. Dummy was entered via a club, and a low heart was led, South finessing his queen. West won with the king, but it didn't matter what West played back for declarer now had his nine tricks: one spade, two hearts, two diamonds, and four clubs.

At the one table where the three notrump contract was defeated, East declined to capture the board's diamond king at trick one. What motivated him to do this is difficult to understand. West might well have had a diamond suit headed by the queen, and a diamond return could (in theory) have established a few diamod winners for West.

With his king of diamonds winning, it seemed natural to take the heart finesse at this point. Declarer did just that, losing his queen to West's king. West, probably thinking that South possessed the diamond ace, now shifted to the queen of spades, which was permitted to win the trick. West continued with the spade jack, South again declining to take the trick. A third spade lead was won by South's ace.

At this point all South had were eight tricks; and the only place where he could obtain his ninth trick was in diamonds. So, hoping that whoever had the diamond ace did not also have the 13th spade, South next led the diamond jack. East took his ace, and cashed the outstanding spade. So the defenders made one diamond trick, one heart, and three spades.

Tip Nips Increase Bean Sizes

Some authorities claim the crop of pole beans can be increased by nipping off the tips of the climbing shoots as soon as they reach the top of the supports. Others claim it has no effect on the number of flowering stems a climbing shoot will produce.

Regardless of the outcome, there is no valid reason for allowing these growths to extend beyond the length of the supports. Any flowers produced on these tips will come too late for usable beans to develop before the warm weather ends.

By removing the growth tips we divert the food that would be used in making extension growth to a more useful purpose, that of increasing the size of the beans already formed and possibly encouraging the more rapid development of later flower stems.

It has been proven that shortening the canes of raspberries, or nipping out the growing tips, results in more fruiting growths and it would seem likely the same effect would be found on pole beans.

The Scarlet Runner bean was grown in every English vegetable garden when I was a lad, and we were taught to nip the tips as soon as they reached the top of the supports.

We did this religiously although no reason was suggested other than the obvious fact there was no further support for the plants to climb.

Having followed this practice all my life it never occurred to me to experiment with nipped and unnipped growths to determine whether the crop was improved. But this would be something worth trying in a garden where pole beans are a regular crop.

To save on labor I no longer grow pole beans, preferring to make two sowings of dwarf beans, one in early May if the soil is warm enough, and another in mid-July for cropping in late August through September.

The most important step in keeping dwarf beans, pole beans, or garden peas, in production is the regular picking of the pods. If any pods are missed when they have reached the normal size for picking, the plant's food supply will be used to mature these seeds instead of producing more flowers.

Picking has to be done at least twice a week, and any pods that are maturing must be removed even if too old for table use. Fortunately the beans can be "shelled" if the pods are too tough for eating.

Some of my gardening friends tell me they never worry about missing a few peas or beans when picking because it is an easy way of obtaining seed for the following year.

It may be easy, but it is certainly not the best way, and when we compare the poundage picked from a given number of plants the value of regular and clean picking is evident. The more beans or peas we can pick from each plant the less plants we have to grow.

To leave a few pods, intentionally or not, is a very haphazard way of obtaining seed. It is well known that top grade seed comes from flowers made early in the plant's life, not from casual pods that are missed, nor from pods found on the plants at the end of the season.

When seed is needed from plants grown in the garden, the seed-bearing plants are selected as the first flowers form, preference being given to those of good habit and making a normal amount of growth.

These plants are clearly marked with colored plastic, and no pods are removed for eating. When sufficient seed has set, the tips are removed to prevent further growth and to divert all energy to the seed already formed.

The selected plants will start to wither long before the plants that are regularly picked, and are allowed to remain until the seed is thoroughly dry.

In this way the quality of the seed stock can be maintained, or improved, whereas the use of ran dom pods causes the seed stock to slowly deteriorate.

Catfish Treating A's with Disdain

By The Associated Press

Oakland A's haven't been the same since Catfish Hunter left and no one knows it better than Catfish Hunter.

"Oakland doesn't have the defence now," the New York Yankee pitcher said Wednesday night after the Yankees dumped his former teammates 10-1 in American League baseball play.

"There are only four guys playing regularly on the A's now," said Hunter. "And there are only 10 players at the most who are still there that I played with in 1974."

Hunter, who came to the Yankees after escaping from Oakland through a legal loophole in his contract, has treated the A's with disdain since 1974. He holds a 5-1 edge over the team he once led to three World Series titles.

In other AL games, Baltimore Orioles beat Texas Rangers 6-4 in 12 innings, Minnesota Twins turned back Boston Red Sox 5-1, Chicago White Sox took a doubleheader fdom Detroit Tigers, 4-1 and 3-0, Milwaukee Brewers stopped Kansas City Royals 5-0 and Cleveland Indians defeated California Angels 6-2.

Hunter, 12-8 scattered nine hits and got ample batting support from Thurman Munson. The Yankee catcher drove in five runs with a three-run homer and two singles.

The only run off Hunter came in the first, on Joe Rudi's RBI single. Munson hit his home run in the fifth inning and run-scoring singles in the first and eighth.

The victory kept the Yankees' lead in the AL East at an imposing 12 gomes over Baltimore.

BOGGS TAKES DIVING LEAD

MONTREAL (CP) — World champion Phil Boggs of the United States led all qualifiers Wednesday into tonight's Olympic Games men's three-metre springboard diving final.

The U.S. Air Force captain, coached by former Olympic women's champion Micki King, was a picture of consistency as he piled up 621.51 points in his 11 preliminary dives.

The current world and defending Olympic tower champion, Klaus Dibiasi of Italy, shrugged off what could have been two disastrous misses to finish fourth with 572.82 points.

Second and third on the strength of strong finishes were Robert Cragg of the U.S. with 582.99 points and Falk Hoffman of East Germany with 573.00.

Scott Cranham of Toronto led the Canadian team with 485.97 points for 16th place. Ken Armstrong of Woodstock, Ont., was 12th after the initial six dives but finished 23rd with 442.47 points.

Skip Phoenix of Toronto finished 19th with 458.18 points.

AIB Rules Concern U.S. Auto Workers

DETROIT (UPI) — The United Auto Workers Union warned Wednesday it will not sign a new national auto contract agreement that does not provide Canadian workers with pay equal to their U.S. counterparts.

UAW president Leonard Woodcock refused to say the union would strike if the Cannadian Anti-Inflation Board turns down a U.S.-size wage package, but admitted it would put labor peace in both countries in question.

The warning came as the union began contract negotiations with Chrysler Corp., the last of the automotive "big three" to listen to the UAW's initial demands.

Chrysler is the only U.S. auto company with an international agreement covering 102,000 U.S. workers and another 13,000 in Canada. But wage packages established in the United States are used as the pattern for contracts at the Canadian subsidiaries of GM and Ford.

Negotiations begin Thursday with American Motors Corp. Contracts covering 680,000 workers expire at midnight, Sept. 14, at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler and a day later at AMC.

The Canadian problem arose because of that country's wage controls which prevent first-year wage increases higher than 10 per cent, a figure expected to be exceeded by the UAW in its negotiations covering 680,000 workers at the four major auto companies.

"We are not seeking a confrontation with Mr. (Pierre) Trudeau's government," Woodcock said. "I think that we can find a sensible solution.

"But the fact remains that there is a treaty for an integrated North American automotive industry," Woodcock added, referring to the U.S.-Canadian Automotive trade agreement that allows completed automobiles and parts to move between the two countries without any tariffs.

The union won wage parity for Canadian workers in 1967. Douglas Fraser, the UAW vice president who heads the union's Chrysler department, said "it won't die in 1976 at Chrysler."

Burma Minorities Banding Together

Washington Post

WANKA GATE, Rebel-held Burma — Nine of this country's ethnic minorities, united only by their opposition to the government of Ne Win, have banded together in a "National Democratic Front" and called for China or the United States to aid their struggle.

Until recently, the rebel groups' chief support has been the live-and-let-live attitude of Thailand, which turns a blind eye to smuggling, and of the Burmese Communist Party.

But lately the Communists have occupied some formerly rebel-held areas along Burma's northern borders with Laos and Thailand, and the rebel front is seeking to negotiate a solution.

"We don't want to fight our war on two fronts," said the front's president, Mahn Zan, 60, a leader of the Karen tribes.

His Karen National Union has fought the central Burmese government for 26 years, and earlier this year it held a meeting of rebel groups upstream from here.

Some of the delegates to the rebel congress — nine member groups and four observers — particularly the Kachins and the Sans, had to march for as much as three months to get to the meeting place, which Zan described as being a five-hour boat trip upstream from this tiny

$340M City Transit Boost

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation secretary William Coleman, saying highways alone "will not do the job" of keeping cities accessible to people, Wednesday announced $340 million for mass transit projects in seven cities.

Receiving grants for subways and bus lines are New York, Baltimore, Boston, Detroit, Seattle, San Francisco and Washington, D.C.

Baltimore got the biggest grant, $111 million.

"The city that is not accessible cannot serve its people," Coleman told a news conference, saying the money was proof the government was "committed to revitalizing our major cities to the best of our abilities."

"The city that lacks mobility is a poor host, a harsh landlord. Try as we will, highways alone, where buses with 40 passengers must compete with the one occupant car for the same piece of pavement, will not do the job.

"We must relieve the congestion caused by the clogs of cars and the bottlenecks in transportation systems, random-planned and too often ill-managed."

Big California Fruit Giveaway

United Press International

Farmers in California blasted horns and gave away peaches Wednesday to protest a cannery strike that threatened ripening crop as their Oregon counterparts said they feared grain crops would rot during a grain inspectors' strike that shut down docks.

The two strikes threaten to ruin tons of fruit, vegetables and grain — forcing up food prices across the U.S.

Officials said the California strike was costing agricultural owners, workers and communities $24 million a day. A long strike would cause the layoff of 100,000 pickers and then spread to allied industries — costing as much as $2 billion if its lasts through August.

In Sacramento, angry peach growers circled the capitol in 140 pickup trucks, horns blaring, to protest the walkout and gave away peaches they said would otherwise rot in the orchards.

A judge in Salem, Ore., Wednesday denied a state request for a court order to force striking state grain inspectors back to work but scheduled a hearing for Monday on a request for a temporary injunction against the walkout.

The inspectors struck Tuesday, halting wheat shipments from Portland, Pendleton and Astoria, idling half-filled cargo ships and threatening the state's record 60-million bushel wheat crop.

Hanoi Pledges Release Of Stranded Americans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vietnam says Americans stranded in that country since the end of the war will be allowed to leave, starting late next week.

Two senators and a congressman received telegrams Wednesday from Vo Van Sung, Vietnamese ambassador in Praris, announcing his government had authorized the departure of all Americans, their wives and children, effective Aug. 1.

The telegram said: "Americans blocked in South Vietnam will be authorized to leave South Vietnam, according to their wishes, and with their wives and children beginning Aug. 1, 1976, with the help of the United Nations high commissioner on refugees."

Diplomatic sources said Vietnam agreed in principle to allow the Americans to leave as early as last April, but after allowing two citizens to fly to Bangkok, no more were allowed out.

Last week, 12 American citizens and five Vietnamese dependents were to fly from Saigon to Bangkok, but officials at the last moment cancelled their permission to leave.

'Bicentennial Revolution'

WAUPUN, WIS — Rebellious inmates at Wisconsin state prison Wednesday night ended a "bicentennial revolution" and released 14 hostages they had held for 14 hours in return for amnesty.

The convicts, armed with zip guns, clubs, knives and firebombs, held the hostages in "a deathbox" while they negotiated their demands with prison officials.

Authorities said 88 inmates took 16 persons hostage during the rebellion.

Sources inside the prison said the hostages were held in a hallway stuffed with paper and other debris and soaked with a flammable liquid so it could be ignited quickly if the building was rushed by surrounding police and guards. Stairways and other exits also were soaked, sources said.

Two of the hostages — one of them suffering from head injuries — were released while inmates negotiated with prison officials.

The others were freed when officials agreed to some of the prisoners' demands.

Dodge county sheriff Edwin Nehls said authorities did not attempt to rush the building because of the large amount of flammable liquid inside.

"It would have been a deathbox for the 14 inside," he said. Dodge county district attorney James Mack said he agreed not to prosecute any of the prisoners involved in the uprising because "there were 14 lives at stake."

Prison officials also agreed there would be no administrative discipline for prisoners involved in the disorder.

Riot-garbed police surrounded the old building where the inmates holed up. Banners draped from building proclaimed: Bicentennial Revolution, Stop Treating Us Like Dogs, Two Inmates Beaten, Time to Think and Free Us Now," and Caution — Congressmen at Play.

Homemade firebombs dropped by convicts exploded sporadically in the prison yard during the insurrection.

8 MORE PRESSMEN CHARGED AT POST

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Criminal charges were entered against eight more Washington Post pressmen in connection with damage done in the newspaper's press room at the beginning of a strike last Oct. 1.

The Post's presses were smashed as the pressmen left the building at the start of the strike.

A federal grand jury lodged criminal charges against seven members of the newspaper and the Graphic Communications Union last week.

The latest defendants were charged with destruction of property and rioting. In addition, one of them, Lucius Smith, was charged with stealing from a press an apparatus for folding papers and with receiving property he knew to be stolen.

The pressmen's union is the only one still striking against The Post, which missed only one day's editions because of the damaged presses.

Federal Aid Given Centre

The Cedar Village Canadian Legion senior citizens housing project at 7601 East Saanich Road has been awarded a $6,940 federal New Horizons grant to develop an activity centre.

The grant will provide for the installation of a shuffleboard court, pool table, and purchase of equipment for bingo games, movies, handicrafts, ceramics and woodwork. A putting green and garden space will also be developed outdoors.

GE Battling Microwave Ban

NEW YORK (UPI) — General Electric Corp. wants the government to exempt 36,000 of its microwave ovens from federal safety standards.

GE says the ovens are not hazardous to those who cook with them, but the government isn't sure.

Directly involved are GE's Versatronic and Hot Point Cook Centre combination stove-ovens, produced between November, 1973, and October, 1975.

GE officials in Louisville, Ky., estimate 28,518 units have been sold at $800 each.

But more than the likely possibility of injury from microwave leakage — GE insists there is none — is the larger issue of the company's challenge to the standards themselves, adopted in 1971 after two years of research and debate.

Donald Johnstone, GE general manager for range product management, said, "If there was any chance of danger, any at all, we feel very obligated to go out and fix it.

"This is silly. There is no danger, period."

"The basic principle involved here is what does a government agency do," said Arthur Lazell, assistant director of the bureau of radiological health in Washington, which enforces radiation standards.

Nudies Cooled

CONCRETE, Wash. (AP) — Skinny-dippers in the Baker Hot Springs are being asked to cool it, says a spokesman for the United States forest service.

Steve Morton said Wednesday that new rules have been posted which prohibit nude bathing during the day when most families are swimming in the springs on the northern Washington mountain.

Morton said in addition to complaints from families, there had been a tremendous increase in litter, vandalism and nude orgies.

BED CADET GOES BACK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Merchant Marine Academy has reinstated a female cadet who resigned after being caught in bed with her fiance, also a cadet at the Kings Points, N.Y., academy.

Nancy Donnelly had said she was pressured into resigning while her fiance went on to graduate.

Getting Southwind into the bottle isn't easy.

It takes time to blend the Demerara, Barbados and other fine rums that go into Southwind.

Then more time to age Southwind in oak, to perfect maturity.

Southwind has the beautiful body you look for in a rum, but without the brawn.

FRENCH CENTRE FOR VICTORIA

A centre for French-speaking Victorians has been established at 1318 Broad Street.

Financed by the federal government, the centre will conduct a survey to establish the number of French speaking people in the Greater Victoria area.

It will also operate an information service and will organize social activities for those between the ages of 16 and 25.

Louise Beland, a University of Victoria student who teaches French on an inter-provincial exchange program, is one of the workers at the centre.

Since early June, she said, the centre has sent out 200 questionnaires to French speaking people, and is seeking contact with others.

The purpose is to compile a French directory of services which will list professional and trades people.

'Hot' Order Bar Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — The strike-bound B.C. Distillery plant in New Westminster could be the focal point around a legal challenge to "hot" declarations imposed by the B.C. Federation of Labor where it backs strike action by designating "hot" products boycotts.

Seagram Distilleries officials, owners of B.C. Distillery, are discussing the use of a new amendment to the Labor Code to have the provincial Labor Relations Board invalidate a "hot declaration on its products, company spokesman John Usher says.

The amendment was approved in the recent provincial legislative session, but has not yet been tested.

Len Guy, secretary-treasurer predicted the board would not invalidate the declaration because Seagram's challenged an earlier order from the board.

The federation began boycotting Seagram's products in March, 1975, after workers at the New Westminster distillery were locked out when the company closed its bottling operations.

The board ordered the company to cease its lockout. The company closed the distillery and put it up for sale in October.

"We put the declaration on and we will not take it off, regardless of legislation," said Mr. Guy.

He said Seagrams must be "feeling the pinch" if it now wants its products back in B.C. liquor store shelves.

A spokesman for the labor board said it has not yet decided on how it will handle applications regarding "hot" declarations.

He said it could take the form of a board investigation into the declaration or the board could hear submissions representing both company and labor viewpoints.

CHEESE DANGER BITTEN

OTTAWA (CP) — Not even a mouse could gobble enough blue cheese to cause nerve damage, says Dr. William McKinley of the federal health department.

He was responding to concern raised by reports out of Washington of a recent study by two Ottawa scientists who found a nerve poison called requefortine in 16 samples of blue cheese from seven countries, including Canada.

The reports did not make it clear that the roquefortine levels found in the cheeese were very low, Dr. McKinley said.

"You'd have to eat two tons of the cheeese at one sitting to cause any nerve damage, the roquefortine levels are so low."

Roquefortine is put in blue cheeses to produce their blue color and distinctive flavor.

Japan Pays War Debts

TOKYO (AP) — Japan closed the books today on more than $1 billion in reparations payments to four Asian countries its troops ravaged during the Second World War.

The end came with announcement of the completion of $550 million of reparations payments to the Philippines. The final instalment this year was $17.5 million.

Japan also paid $200 million to Burma between 1955 and 1965, $39 million to South Vietnam between 1960 and 1965 and $223.1 million to Indonesia between 1958 and 1970.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A former Victoria man was cleared of two charges Wednesday in Victoria provincial court while an arrest warrant was approved for his sister-in-law, a Victoria woman whose complaints led to the charges.

Judge William Ostler ordered a warrant for the arrest of Patricia Darlene Knelson when she failed to show up for hearing of charges against William Lloyd Christie, 39, now of Vancouver, of forcible seizure and common assault on Mrs. Kenlson April 7.

Prosecutor Richard Law immediately entered stays on both charges.

Christie was charged May 31 and his detention in custody was ordered June 9 by Ostler after a bail hearing. Also on June 9, Mrs. Knelson asked that the charges be withdrawn beacuse she "didn't remember" but Ostler refused.

Hearing of both charges was set for June 21 before Judge Harold Alder but Mrs. Knelson did not appear then and Alder approved a warrant for her arrest.

She suddenly appeared in Ostler's court June 28 but was released on her own recognizance by Alder the next day pending the delayed start of the hearings Wednesday. Christie also was released on his own recognizance after staying in custody May 31 to June 29.

Wednesday, Ostler said no bail can be set for Mrs. Knelson after her arrest without an appearance before a judge. He called the stays entered by Law "the proper course to adopt . . . there is no justification to further vex" Christie.

In the court section of Judge F. S. Green, preliminary hearing dates were set in three major narcotics cases dated July 13.

James Morton Harris, 23, Steven Lloyd Thorne, 25, and Cherys Elaine Colwell, 20, all of 10130-5th in Sidney, chose trial by judge and jury on a Sidney charge of possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking. Their hearing will take place Dec. 2.

Brian Philip Cunningham, 28, of 101 Battleford, elected trail by judge and jury on one Saanich charge of trafficking in marijuana and a second of possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking. Green set his hearing for Dec. 6.

Richard John Bing, 17, of 2531 Government, chose trial by county court judge on a Victoria charge of possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking. His hearing was scheduled for Dec. 3.

Two separate but similar charges involving a total of four persons and also dated July 13 were remanded to dates within the next week when court time will be found for their preliminary hearings.

Roland Aldege Joseph Laberge, 26, of 944 Tattersall, was remanded by Green to Sept. 3 for a pre-sentence report and sentence following a plea of guilty to a Saanich charge of possession July 10 of three wheels and an air filter known to be stolen property.

Prosecutor Nicholas Lang said police found the items shortly after they were taken from a parked car on a Shelbourne service station lot. But he emphasized Laberge was not the thief.

He said Saanich police knew the name of the thief but the latter had been found dead recently in Tacoma, Wash., from an apparent drug overdose.

New Air Row

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — John Marshall, director of air traffic controllers in British Columbia, says controllers in the province are so upset with contempt of court proceedings against them they might walk off their jobs again.

Warrants in the contempt cases are expected to be served shortly against about 155 controllers across the country — including 15 in B.C. — who walked off their jobs just before a commercial pilots strike last month.

Marshall said that although he continues to advise against any walk-out, he is not sure he can prevent association members from taking such an action.

In Gander, Nfld., the vice-president of the Canadian Air Traffic Controllers' Association also said Wednesday the contempt proceedings will agitate association membership.

Mike Tonner of Gander said the action is unfortunate since the membership was just beginning to have faith in the federal government's ability to deal with bilingual air traffic control.

Tonner also said it is inconceivable that no controllers from Quebec are being charged.

13 Held In Envoy Slaying

DUBLIN — Police have rounded up 13 Irish Republican Army members in the biggest manhunt in the Irish republic's history, mounted for the land-mine killers of British ambassador Christopher Ewart-Biggs.

Police declined to identify the arrested men or to say what charges they may face.

At Londonderry in Northern Ireland, the British army arrested Rory O'Brady, president of Sinn Fein, the IRA's political wing, and Sean Keenan, a battalion commander of the IRA Provisionals.

Police said the army had handed the pair over to Eire officials and the men were being questioned.

Police arrested David O'Connell, 39, reputedly a past commander of the IRA Provisional wing, and Joe O'Neill, a political organizer, in Dublin a few hours after the ambush.

Police, meanwhile, think Ewart-Biggs was not the man the terrorists wanted to kill.

They suspect the man marked for death was Brian Cubbon, permanent under-secretary of state in Northern Ireland and the top British civil servant there, who was riding in the ambassador's car at the time.

Cubbon, on a visit to the Irish republic from his post in Belfast, was seriously wounded in the explosion.

WILD SHEEP FOOD JUNKIES

BANFF (CP) — Mountain sheep near this resort community are becoming dangerously undernourished because they are relying on junk food handouts from tourists, according to a member of the game warden service in Banff National Park.

He said the animals are begging for handouts around the tea house on top of nearby Sulphur Mountain and are literally starving to death on a diet of human snacks provided by well-meaning tourists looking for a picture.

"One person was giving them licorice and they're also eating those little plastic bags with the salt in them for peanuts," the warden said.

As a result, the herd has been neglecting its normal grass diet and animals are losing weight.

Wardens fear females are not producing enough high quality milk and lambs may die more easily during the coming winter.

Wardens cannot prohibit the handouts because regulations only prohibit feeding bears.

SUPER SLINGSHOT banned in North Vancouver is being sold at some Victoria stores.

POCKET ROCKETS NOT BANNED HERE

New-style slingshots which can hurl a stone 225 yards and are already banned in one Lower Mainland area, are on sale in Victoria.

North Vancouver District council banned sale and possession of the slingshots, known as Pocket Rockets, last Monday.

The bylaw was sparked by complaints that stores there were selling steel slingshots with an armbase and surgical rubber slings attached to a tubular steel frame.

The ban was imposed to prevent damage before it occurred.

In Victoria, the slingshots are sold at Woolco, Robinson's Sporting Goods and Gordon's Sporting Goods, a random survey showed. Prices range from $6.97 to $8.95.

K-Mart also reported sales of the pocket rockets but was out of stock today.

Eaton's, The Bay, Woodward's and Simpson-Sears sporting goods departments said they don't sell slingshot.

Marchand Sued For Libel

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa crown prosecutor Andres Berzins said Wednesday he will sue Jean Marchand for libel because the former cabinet minister refuses to retract a statement accusing him of cheating.

"We are going to settle this thing in court," Berzins said in an interview, referring to allegations by Marchand about the circumstances which occurred after he lost his driver's licence last year.

"I will definitely sue," Berzins said.

His comment came moments after Marchand's lawyer released a letter about the allegations.

Marchand backed up his statement in an interview from Quebec City.

Last fall, Marchand was charged, and later convicted, of leaving the scene of an accident. He had been involved in an Ottawa traffic accident earlier in the year, and witnesses testified that he left the scene without getting out of his car.

In a June newspaper interview, he claimed there had been an agreement between himself and the Crown regarding the case and that he had been cheated.

Berzins had said Marchand apparently felt he would receive only a small fine if he pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident.

But the assistant Crown attorney for the judicial district of Ottawa-Carleton said he "never breached any deal that was made."

RESIDENTS FIGHT DEVELOPMENT

Millions in Profits 'At Stroke of Pen'

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Land developers and speculators stand to make millions of dollars profit if a proposed industrial park is allowed in the Vanalman-Glanford area of Saanich.

In fact, the profits could run as high as $42 million, claims Lawrence Cook, chairman of a group of concerned residents from the Royal Oak and Northridge areas.

"It would be the biggest bonanza ever to hit Greater Victoria," Cook said in an interview Wednesday.

"Instant millionaires would be made overnight. And not one cent of the profit would go back to the municipality to help lower taxes or give residents in the area benefits or consessions."

Cook said the citizen's group is "totally opposed" to the proposal which would involve lifting much of the 125-acre site out of the agriculture land freeze and rezoning it for commercial and industrial use.

The proposal was announced by council after nearly four years of study for a suitable location for an industrial park.

Cook maintains Mayor Ed Lum is aware of the huge profits that would be made and blasted Lum for his apparent determination to push the scheme through council.

Dick Gauthier, a member of the executive of the Royal Oak community group, also lashed out at Lum.

"He seems to want to go through with this plan no matter what."

Gauthier said initially most residents were resigned to some industrial development in the area.

But not any longer.

"The consensus I get is there is no way the people want any part of the complex now."

The reason for the change in heart, he said, has been Lum's bungling and vagueness in answering questions or providing guarantees regarding the ultimate size of the complex, the size and type of buffer zones, and the amount of additional tax revenue it would generate.

He said to his knowledge, no study has been done on the impact on the health and welfare of people in the surrounding area or on property values outside the designated industrial site.

Yet, he contends, such a study was required under the Municpal Act.

He's upset for personal reasons, too.

"I moved into Northgate 4½ years ago to get into a rural setting," he said. "Now I'm confronted with an industrial complex being built right at my backdoor."

Cook said based on past and current sales prices of land in the proposed site, owners will reap an enormous windfall gain by a zoning change.

Pregnancy 'Bias'

A human rights board of inquiry has ruled that any employer who fires a woman because she is pregnant is acting in contravention of the Human Rights Code.

Human Rights director Kathleen Ruff said the ruling is important for all the women in B.C. because prior to the ruling there was no protection for women, "and it happened quite often" that they were fired for that reason.

The inquiry, chaired by Sholto Hebenton, was held into complaint by a Vancouver woman last October who said she was fired from her job as a reservations clerk because she was pregnant.

The employer, Riviera Reservations Ltd., argued however that the woman was let go because she was incompetent at her duties.

The human rights department alleged the woman was discriminated against because of sex, "only women get pregnant," said Ruff — and without cause.

CITY DRUG RAID SCOOPS UP HASH

An organization allegedly bringing drugs from eastern Canada to Vancouver Island was hit Wednesday by a series of police raids in Victoria, a spokesman for the Co-Ordinated Law Enforcement Unit said today.

The raids were carried out by CLEU members and officers of the Victoria drug squad.

About 440 grams of hashish worth $4,400 on the street and a small amount of marijuana was seized, the spokesman said.

Four persons were taken into custody and appeared before Judge Fred Green in Victoria provincial court this morning. They are Patrick Joseph McLoughlin, 28, and Joanne Gareau, 19, both of 1083 Redfern, James Brad Belefontaine, 22, of 425 Wilson and Harold Arthur Reid, 26, address not known.

McLoughlin and Gareau are charged with possession of hashish for the purpose of trafficking. No pleas were entered and both were remanded to July 28 for legal counsel.

Judge Green set bail for Gareau at $1,200 with one or two sureties and held McLoughlin in custody.

Reid is charged with possession of marijuana for the purposes of trafficking and was remanded to July 29 for election of trial method and plea. He was released on a $1,000 recongizance bond.

Belefontaine pleaded guilty to possession of three grains of hashish and was fined $150.

Aurora Buy 'Bad Deal'

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Concern that the Canadian government has made a "bad deal" in deciding to purchase the Lockheed CP-140 Aurora was voiced Wednesday by New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent and Alan McKinnon, Progressive Conservative defence critic.

"If Lockheed fails at the most inappropriate time we will have paid dearly for what we will have on hand—some plane wings and some irrelevant and obsolete production machinery," said McKinnon the PC member for Victoria.

Broadbent conceded that there was no doubt the CP-140 aircraft was airworthy and could be used to detect submarines.

"What we do question is whether we need an improved submarine detection capability. Military experts tell us that the chances that Canada would be called upon to keep the sea lanes open to Europe are very remote.

"James Richardson seems to have a 'Walter Mittyish' fantasy about finding submarines."

McKinnon said a "serious flaw" in the newly announced agreement to purchase was that Canada would still be paying out several hundred million dollars before the first aircraft is completed. This was the basic reason that the first deal frightened off the Canadian banks.

"If we compare the two contracts as to price, the previous contract — with interest payments of $108 million — came to $1.06 billion or $953 million without the interest. The new contract comes to $1.03 billion — without interest — for a lesser plane.

"Either we are paying a great deal more for the plane or Lockheed has simply added the interest charges to the basic price," said McKinnon.

Defence Minister James Richardson said in Ottawa Wednesday that the billion dollar deal could bring Canada as much as $932.6 million in industrial benefits.

He said Lockheed has undertaken firm contractual commitments to place some $414.6 million worth of "program-related and offset work" with Canadian manfacturers and suppliers.

In addition, the company is committed to transferring to Canadian plants the production of future P3 aircraft components amounting to approximately $168 million.

Richardson said this work would go to Canadair in Montreal.

Martian Morning Nippy

Times News Services

PASADENA — The first Martian weather report shows nippy morning temperatures of -82 degrees Celsius on the Red Planet, under pink skies.

Dust particles floating in the thin atmosphere scatter sunlight to paint the sky pink, scientists explained today, even though it looked an earthly blue in Viking 1's first color picture.

"It it red, but not as red as the surface," said Dr. Carl Sagan.

The false color in the first picture was due to the fact that Viking's cameras have not yet been adjusted to reproduce colors on Mars with perfect accuracy, said project officials.

A more serious problem was also revealed late Wednesday. The seismometer designed to detect marsquakes did not turn on properly after Tuesday's landing.

Unless it can be fixed by radio commands from earth, the instrument will not be able to carry out its work of recording quakes and examining the interior of the planet, said Lou Kingsland, deputy mission director.

Sudanese Join Games Exodus

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Sudan today joined the list of African countries boycotting the Olympic Games, but the Sudanese had an extra reason for quitting — nearly half their athletes were disqualified from competing on a technicality.

Fouad Hassan, head of the Sudanese delegation, said today he had given official notice of the pullout to the Olympic organizing committee Wednesday.

Sudan's 28 athletes would leave the Olympic Village today, he added.

"We are withdrawing for two reasons," Hassan said.

"First, we didn't get our players registered. Second, because of New Zealand's participation."

The withdrawal of Sudan brings to 30 the total number of nations which have pulled out of the Games to protest a New Zealand rugby team's tour of South Africa.

Hassan, however, sounded more frustrated over the disqualification of seven boxers and six shooters because their registration forms were submitted after the July 16 deadline.

The forms arrived by mail

MONTREAL (Reuters) — Japanese gymnast Shun Fujimoto wore a plastic cast from hip to toe Wednesday after he defied a broken leg to compete and win the coveted gold medal for his team Tuesday night.

The crew-cut competitor from Tokyo beat searing pain in his right leg to score 9.75 points on the rings — his best personal score and good enough to beat the Soviet team into second place.

But doctors said today the Fugimoto's knee bone was already broken when he executed a triple somersault and twist to come off the rings and stand still long enough to fetch the winning score. Then he was carried away.

"I knew I was finished after the floor exercises when something cracked in my leg," he said in an interview.

"But the rings are my best appartus and I knew I needed to score at east 9.70 points to enable us to win the gold medal."

Almost shyly he added: "I just forgot about the pain and competed. Yes, when I came off the rings pain shot through me like a knife. It brought tears to my eyes but I managed to stand stil and move my weight to my left foot. It was the best score on the rings in my life."

Fujimoto, who is married and has a smal son, refused to be carried and hobbled to the podium to receive his gold medal with the rest of the team.

Now he is on crutches.

His feat has fascinated doctors and athletes at the Vilage.

Dr. Jean-Paul Dedeard, who examined Fujimoto, said: "He must have suffered incredible pain with that injury. How he managed to do somersaults and twists and land without collapsing in screams is beyond my comprehension. What a man."

GAMES HOME TO IMPOSTER?

MONTREAL (CP) — Police sealed off part of the Canadian team's quarters at the Olympic Village today following reports that an impostor, claiming to be an alternate on the men's track relay team, was living there.

Canadian delegation officials had maintained that no athlete by the name of Paul Wilkinson of Oregon was registered with their office or assigned quarters with the Canadian track team. Reports indicated that Wilkinson had been living in the Village for two weeks.

A member of the Canadian track team, who insisted on remaining anonymous, said that Wilkinson is a friend of one of the team members and had been staying with the track team for almost two weeks.

"He's a friend of one of the athletes and has been staying here on a day-to-day basis doing his regular con job with the guards . . ." the track team member said. "No one has found out. He hasn't done anything destructive, he hasn't created any malice. He's quite welcome by all the athletes."

The team member said he did not know the specifics of Wilkinson's flim-flam but presumed he worked it by exchanging identification cards with his friends and moving about on a certain time schedule.

Smokers, Just Watch It!

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

Smokers should read carefully downtown — whether in a chartered accountant's office, a feed store, a fashion emporum or a scuba shop.

Habitual puffers may be asked to stub that cigarette or cigar, and some merchants have the clout to make it stick.

Fire Chief Eric Simmons said Wednesday 13 retail premises are armed with a special permit from the fire department which allows prosecution of a smoker who refuses to put out a cigarette.

Although there haven't been any prosecutions, culprits can be fined up to $100.

The city of Victoria decided against passing a special bylaw prohibiting use of smoking materials in retail stores, a move taken recently by Burnaby.

When first approached by downtown merchants two years ago to pass a similar bylaw, the city pointed out that an existing provision in the Fire Prevention bylaw, which the fire department could authorize on request.

The section empowers the department to prohibit smoking in any theatre, store or public place where combustible materials are "handled, stored, manufactured or sold."

The problem with passing a municipal bylaw, said Simmons, is that it has to be enforced, either by police or fire officials.

Under the current procedure, the store itself can police the non-smokers haven and authorities are only called in when an ornery smoker won't comply.

Premises off limits to smokers are: department stores including The Bay, Eaton's, Simpsons-Sears and Odeon Theatres.

Others are Metropolitan Church, Viteway Bakery and Organic Food Shop; C. J. Fashion (Girl Boutique), Rickard Crawford and Co., chartered accountants; Wilson's Business Services; Buckerfields, Waller Antiques; The Scuba Shop and Munro's Book Stores.

Also frowning on smoking are Victoria General and Royal Jubilee hosptials, and many doctors' offices.

Permits were requested, said Simmons mainly because stores don't want smoking on the premises due to the danger to dry goods. Owners want the protection.

Saanich fire chief Harold Gains says there is no smoking policy in that municipality.

A smoker for 25 years, "until I got sensible", Gains says since Victoria has the major department stores, there has been no move towards implementing the special permit policy in Saanich.

He says it's a good idea. "There's no doubt smoking creates a hazard."

Management already has the right to request a customer's co-operation to butt the smoke on a store premises and that seems to settle the issue in Saanich, he says.

In Victoria's, designated stores however, the only thing left for smokers is to fume — with indignation, not tobacco.

WANTED: A TRAVELLING MAN

McCarthy to Name Convention Chief

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy promised today to appoint a co-ordinator for British Columbia to try to bring more convention business to the province.

She said she expects to have an announcement on the appointment soon.

The province handles $45 million worth of convention business every year, she said, "but unfortunately we haven't had anybne acting on behalf of the government and working with private enterprise to make sure we are tying down conventions."

The co-ordinator would travel throughout the U.S. and Canada trying to convince organizations to hold their conventions in B.C.

McCarthy said most conventions are planned from four to seven years in advance and the co-ordinator would travel to conventions to convince delegates to hold future meetings in the province.

Increased convention business could mean 400 to 500 people at a time coming to Victoria and the co-ordinator would also work to convince convention delegates to travel up-Island for a couple of days after meetings are over.

The co-ordinator would also seek to have delegates at U.S. conventions in places like Seattle come up to B.C. on the Princess Marguerite after the end of meetings.

McCarthy said the co-ordinator would be working in a competitive field but increased convention business is one of the first projects she wants to get started as the minister of travel industry.

The appointment of a co-ordinator is part of the re-organization of the travel industry department, she said.

Meanwhile the man behind a radio ad campaign aimed at bringing more tourists to Victoria has set a deadline of 5 p.m. Tuesday to collect the $50,000 needed to finance the blitz.

Richard Truman, of Truman-Glover Advertising Ltd., officially kicked off his effort to raise the cash at a meeting Wednesday.

About 50 Victoria businessmen heard six radio commercials which would be aired on stations throughout the Lower Mainland., the Fraser Valley and the Okanagan.

Victoria's three radio stations, he told the meeting, have promised to join the campaign and plans call for posters, lapel stickers and postcards to be distributed.

Truman told the businessmen their pledges would only be considered binding if the $50,000 goal is met by deadline time.

His own firm, he said, is pledging $2,000 towards the campaign.

The fund will be handled by Al Mactier, of the Royal Trust Co. and Ted Balderson, general manager of the Empress Hotel.

Administrators would be Bob Harvey, CP Air's Victoria general manager and Al Frame general manager of the Classic Car Museum.

Five Ferry Firings

Five employees of the provincially-owned ferry Princess Marguerite were fired Wednesday after a hearing and investigation of money taken in from liquor sales on the ship.

The five, all members of the Brotherhood of Railway, Airline and Steamship Clerks (BRASC), are expected to appeal the decision.

A BRASC spokesman said only small amounts of money were involved in the case. Officials of the B.C. Steamship Co. which operates the Marguerite, were not available for comment today and the exact amount of money involved is not known.

Under the union contract employees cannot be fired until after a hearing is held. The five were "held out of service" since the weekend, but were not officially dismissed until the end of Wednesday's hearing.

The union held a meeting Tuesday in Vancouver at which plans were made to attend the formal hearing into the allegation. BRASC general chairman Ron Welch was among those attending the hearing.

Dave Price, superintendent of passenger services for B.C. Steamship Co. Wednesday declined to comment on the hearing.

Development Freeze Urged In Beacon Hill

A two-member delegation from the Beacon Hill Park Association today urged Victoria parks committee to freeze further development in the park until a comprehensive plan has been established.

John Newberry, association president, and Terry Reksten, vice-president, said association members are concerned by continuing evidence that park development is allowed to take place in an ad hoc, piecemeal manner without reference to an over-all plan.

Reksten said many of the facilities developed in the park, including formal planting areas, "people areas" and the animal enclosure are good in themselves but do not appear related to any planned program.

"This is why we have been objecting to some of the changes in the past," she said. "If new construction is not the result of careful planning you will be making more mistakes which will be hard to correct."

Her remarks were in reference to a recent offer by the International Order of Hoo-Hoo, a fraternal lumber industry group, to build a wooden picnic shelter in the park.

Reksten said the group should be complimented on its public spirited attitude, but the matter should be held in abeyance until a plan for over-all development has been prepared.

The committee indicated it would wait for a detailed brief from the association, which the delegation said should be ready by the end of summer. Before that, a public hearing will be held to enlist the views of individuals and other organizations.

'Sick, Vicious Racism'

By LIZ HUGHES

A "sick, vicious kind of racism" is exhibited in letters sent last week to several Victorians telling them they had been picked to play host to large Pakistani families, Human Rights Branch director Kathleen Ruff said Wednesday.

Ruff said she has asked the attorney-general's department to look into the letters and the case has been referred to the RCMP.

"There are people who are actively working to promote racial hatred and tension in B.C. and the message they should take is we all should be equally active to promote tolerance and understanding," Ruff said.

The letters were sent by a fictitious group calling itself the Toronto Central Branch of the Canadian Society for Commonwealth Relations. The signature was false and the Toronto address phoney.

The letters said the recipients had been chosen to participate in a "Lend a Helping Hand Plan."

"You will be pleased to know that we have assigned a typical family group from Pakistan to be guests in your home for the next few months," the letters say.

The society promised to supply adequate quantities of curry, rice and powdered goat's milk to feed them.

The letters add that the "typical" family consists of father, mother, nine children, wife's brother, husband's grandmother and her children.

Hydro Cancels Lockout

B.C. Hydro halted its selective lockout campaign for today while representatives of the Office and Technical Employees met to discuss forms of retaliation.

Some 557 employees were locked out Tuesday and Wednesday in a response by B.C. Hydro administration to the union's selective strike action.

Hydro spokesman Dave Robertson said today's no-lockout policy did not represent a change in the administration's position.

Hydro said it would impose a partial lockout and that has been done, he said.

Ask The Times

Q. Can anyone there tell me how I got these crazy freckles? R.P.

A. Well, you could blame your mother or father. They're often hereditary. Freckles occur when pigments, or coloring matter, accumulate in small spots in the outer skin. Yes, sunlight can increase the number and size of freckles.

Anybody Seen Vandal With I.Q. of a Tree?

A vandal dumped three or four of the large cement decorative flower pots on Beacon Avenue in Sidney late Wednesday.

Sidney RCMP said the big flower pots were tipped off their stands, spewing dirt and flowers into the street.

Regular patrols were being made at the time, but "one minute they were there and the next they were over," a spokesman for the detachment said.

No suspects were found, but the spokesman said police are looking for someone with "about the I.Q. of a tree."

James Bay Ready to Fight As Block-Busters Try Again

By PAUL MOSS
Times Stafff

After several years of relative peace and stability, James Bay residents are again witnessing block-busting tactics and receiving not-so-subtle pressure from developers and real estate salesmen who want them to sell their homes.

But this time as area residents prepare to counter the threat, James Bay won't stand alone.

Community development worker Lorne di Girolamo said today concerned residents of the James Bay area have joined with four other communities — Fairfield, Fernwood, Blanshard Court and Victoria West — in an agency which calls itself Communities United for Action.

The problem of uncontrolled development, often entailing demolition of sound single-family homes, faces all these areas, he said, and for the past six weeks neighborhood representatives have been meeting weekly to discuss ways to preserve their quality of life.

De Girolamo said a proposal for action is being developed by CUA and he hopes this will be ready to submit to Victoria city council within four weeks. He declined to disclose details.

Meanwhile, at a meeting of about 60 James Bay residents Wednesday night, there were several volunteers to document facts and figures which will be conveyed to council to underline the urgency of the situation.

De Girolamo told the meeting that the rumble of bulldozers is a familiar sound in James Bay these days, because so many of its homeowners have no personal interest in preserving a quiet residential character.

Of about 6,000 individual residences, fewer than 800 are houses, he said, and of these more than half are owned by absentee landlords.

Among examples of harassment and pressure mentioned at the meeting were letters from developers, and calls at the door by real estate salesmen who inform the resident that his neighbor is selling.

De Girolamo said today one such caller was told in no uncertain terms that the homeowner wasn't interested, and that he and his neighbors liked the community the way it was.

"The realtor replied, 'Look, that's all right, it's just a matter of time.' Isn't that incredible?"

The only council member present at Wednesday night's meeting was Ald. Bill Tindall, who urged residents to demand action from their MLAs. The provincial government alone can change the Municipal Act to give municipalities more power in dealing with speculators, he said.

James Bay's fight against highrise development several years ago was spearheaded by the James Bay Community Association and resulted in the down-zoning of several areas.

But De Girolamo said the reduction of density still allowed the developers plenty of room to operate, and the seeming air of stability was little more than an illusion.

The threat which had "lain dormant" for so long reappeared some 18 months ago, when complaints of block-busting tactics again started surfacing, he added.

The current campaign in the area is not being organized by any particular group but he said it is possible that the residents concerned "may have some relationship" at a later date with the James Bay Community Resources Board.

Pub Plans Chilled by Aldermen

An entrepreneur who wants to establish a British-style local pub in the James Bay area today left a meeting of Victoria's finance committee asking aldermen whether his efforts are "an exercise in futility."

Mayor Mike Young agreed they probably are.

Young told Roger Mawdsley council's lack of enthusiasm for the comcept of neighborhood pubs stems from the way regulations are worded under liquor laws.

The mayor said it's not a case of council merely approving one application for one pub — to approve Mawdsley's bid it would first have to give blanket approval to the principle of such pubs in Victoria, and council is worried it may not have the statutory right to approve or reject.

He said when such concerns were aired several months ago with Vic Woodland, general manager of the Liquor Administration Branch, Woodland assured the city no pub location would be approved unless the city was also in favor.

But Young noted that the manager "is not immortal" and the possibility exists that at some future time council will find it has no rights in the matter.

Mawdsley, who said he felt his premises at 512 Simcoe Street would be a "prime" location for a pub, told aldermen he would counter residents' concerns on the drinking-driving question by ensuring that only residents of the immediate James Bay area would be admitted to the premises.

Some kind of indentification system would be used, he said.

Mawdsley said he comes from a small town in Lancashire with only 7,000 inhabitants where there were seven pubs but seldom any problems with excessive drinking.

Yet in Victoria, most of the licenced premises are in the downtown area and require patrons to "drive from all over the place."

The "beer-trough" atmosphere prevails with waiters dumping a dozen glasses of beer on the table and glowering at customers if they don't drink up fast enough, he claimed.

Mayor Young claimed that his picture of "halcyon conditions" on the British drinking scene wasn't entirely accurate. Young said he came from Glasgow which was "a disaster" in that respect.

The committee referred the application for discussion by the council's caucus group.
